MR. John Rogers, Minister of the Gospel, was the first Martyr in Queen Mary's Reign, and was burnt in Smithfield, February 14, 1554. His Wife, with nine small children, and one at her Breast, follow'd him to the stake, with which sorrowful sight he was not in the least daunted; but with wonderful patience dy'd courageously for the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Some few Days before his Death, he writ the following Exhortation to his children.

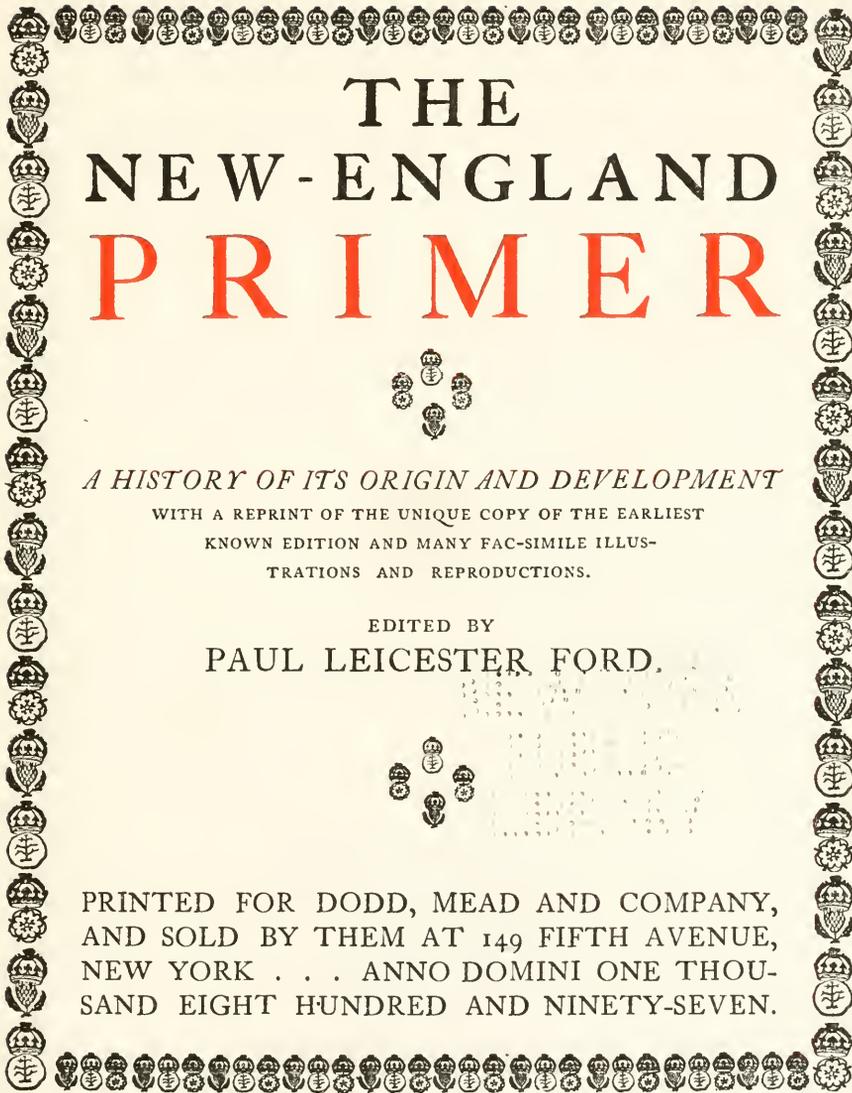

Give ear, my Children, to my Words,
Whom God hath dearly bought,
Lay up his Laws within your hearts,
and print them in your Thoughts;
I leave you here a little Book,
for you to look upon,
That you may see your Father's Face,
when he is dead and gone.
Who for the hope of heav'nly things,
while he did here remain,
Gave over all his golden years
to prison and to pain:
Where I among my Iron Bands,
inclosed in the dark,
Not many days before my death
I did compose this Work.

BURNING OF JOHN ROGERS

From the New England Primer. Boston: 1762

INTRODUCTION

IN the apocryphal poem of John Rogers "unto his children" which was included in every New England Primer, he said :

*"I leave you here a little booke
For you to looke vpon,
That you may see your father's face
When I am dead and gon."*

The New England Primer a mirror of Puritanism

No better description of the New England Primer itself could be penned. As one glances over what may truly be entitled "The Little Bible of New England", and reads its stern lessons, the Puritan mood is caught with absolute faithfulness. Here was no easy road to knowledge and to salvation; but in prose as bare of beauty as the whitewash of their churches, in poetry as rough and stern as their storm-torn coast, in pictures as crude and unfinished as their own glacial-smoothed boulders, between stiff oak covers, which symbolized the contents, the children were led, until, from being unregenerate, and as Jonathan Edwards said, "young vipers, and infinitely more hateful than vipers" to God, to that happy state when, as expressed by Judge Sewall's child, they were afraid they "should goe to hell" and were "stirred up dreadfully to seek God." No earthly or heavenly rewards were offered to its readers. The Separatists had studied their Bible too carefully not to know that a future life of bliss was far more an instinctive longing of mankind than an Old Testament promise. They were too imbued with the faith of Judaism not to preach a religion of stern justice, and the oldest Puritan literature and even laws read strangely Hebraic to nineteenth century eyes. The religion of Christ, a faith based on love and mercy, received less sympathy and less teaching, from their divines than probably from any other sect nominally Christian. Salvation from hell was what they promised; and that the terror might be the greater, God was made sterner and more cruel than any living judge, that all might be brought to realize how slight a chance even the least erring had of escaping eternal damnation.

Education the Strength of Puritanism

But in this very accentuation of the danger lay the strength of Puritanism. No mass or prayer, no priest or pastor, stood between man and his Creator, each soul being morally responsible for its own salvation; and this tenet forced every man to think, to read, to reason. As the Reformation became possible only when the Bible was cheapened by printed versions, so the moment each man could own and study the Book Puritanism began. Unless, however, man could read, independence was impossible, for illiteracy compelled him to rely upon another for his knowledge of the Word; and thus, from its earliest inception, Puritanism, for its own sake, was compelled to foster education. Probably no better expression of this fact can be found than in an order of the "General Corte" of the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, in 1647, that :

"It being one cheife piet of y^t ould deluder, Satan, to keepe men from the knowledge of y^e Scriptures, as in form^r times by keeping y^m in an unknown tongue, so in these latt^r times by pswading from y^e use of tongues, y^t so at least y^e true sence & meaning of y^e originall might be clouded by false glosses of saint seeming deceivers, y^t learning may not be buried in y^e grave of o^r fath^{rs} in y^e church & comonwealth, the Lord assisting o^r endeavors,—

It is therefore ord^{ed}, y^t ev^{ry} towne in this iurisdiction, aft^r y^e Lord hath increased y^m to y^e number of 50 household^{rs}, shall then forthwth appoint one wthin their towne to teach all such children as shall resort to him to write & reade."¹

Independency, no less than Papacy and Episcopacy, was able to forsee the danger of individualism in that it threatened to result in a man's not finding in the Bible the one belief by which alone the Puritans held he could be saved. Think for himself he must, but it was his duty to think what the Separatists thought, and so churches were gathered, and "teachers"—as they were first called—were chosen, who told their congregations what they were to think for themselves. Very quickly organized sects followed, which formulated creeds and catechisms, demanded belief in them, and tortured, imprisoned and exiled the recalcitrant. Finding that other men, like themselves, could not be made by punishment to accept other than their own opinions, the children were taken in their earliest years, and drilled and taught to believe what they were to think out for themselves when the age of discretion was reached. And this was the function of the New England Primer. With it millions were taught to read, that they might read the Bible; and with it these millions were catechised unceasingly, that they might find in the Bible only what one of many priest-hoods had decided that book contained.

Romish Abecedariums and Prymers

THIS method of securing uniformity by uniting alphabet and creed was as old as printed books. The Enschedé Abecedarium, which has even been claimed to be the first specimen of printing with type, and which certainly was printed in the fifteenth century,¹ contained besides the alphabet, the Pater Noster, the Ave Maria, the Credo and two prayers, being the elementary book of the Romish Church. So too, a larger book of Catholicism, for more advanced students, was the well-known "Book of Hours"; which, translated from the Latin text into English,² was called "The Prymer of Salisbury use", and was printed as early as 1490. As need hardly be said there are many later editions of both these works.

Henry VIIIth's Prymers and A B Cs

When the Reformation began to work among the people in England, among its signs was the printing of unauthorized primers, and Henry the VIII. issued "proclamations" and "injunctions" against these, in an endeavor to keep his people true to Catholicism. Very soon, however, he experienced a change of heart not merely towards his wedded wife, but incidentally as well, towards his mother church, and in 1534, as one method of fighting the Pope, he allowed to be prepared and issued what is known as the "Reform Primer",¹ designed to teach his people what they should believe. In this however, his desire to have done with the Church of Rome, led him to act too hastily, for in less than a year, he varied his belief and licensed the issue to his people of a "Goodly Prymer in Englysshe"² that they might know the only true and revised to date religion. Yet a third time new light came to the head of the English church, and in a third primer, known as the "Henry VIIIth Primer",³ the King marked out a new and only path to heaven for his subjects. All these primers contained portions intended for children, such as "a fruitful and very Christian instruction for children", and since the Romish Church had a preliminary book to its Prymer, so Henry had his, called "The A B C",⁴ the earliest known copy of which contains the alphabet, the Lord's Prayer, the Hail Mary, the Creed, various Graces for before and after "dyner" and for "fysse dayes", and the "ten comoundements". The distinction between the two was well sent and diversity of

As was not surprising, many of the King's subjects became somewhat unsettled in their belief, and even developed a tendency to form one not ordained by his majesty. Furthermore these wayward people declined to use the primers printed "cum privilegio regali" but purchased heretical books put forth without authority, so that Henry in the preface of his later primers, took notice in evident disgust "of the diversitie of primer books that ar now abroad, whereof ar almost innumerable sortes, which mynister occasion of contentions and vain disputations, rather then to edify"; to end this difficulty he commanded "one uniforme ordre of al such bookes throughout al our dominions, both to be taught unto children and also to be used for ordinary prayers of all our people not learned in the latyn tong"; and for that purpose,

At which time they may at their libertie either use this primer in Englishe, or that whiche is by oure authoritie likewise made in the Latyn tong, in all pointes correspondent unto this in Englysche.”¹

This injunction it is needless to say was little heeded. The English King could depose the vicegerent of Heaven, even though the latter was infallible, but he could not overcome the common people. Faiths and Creeds multiplied until the famous Council of Trent complained of the “infinite” number of the “little books” and stated that there had come to be “as many catechisms as there are provinces in Europe, nay, almost as many as the cities, are circulated, all of which abound with heresies, whereby the minds of the simple are deceived.” Their majesties Henry, Edward, Mary, Elizabeth and James, though each having a different faith, successively forbade, seized and burned these unauthorized books; and whipped, imprisoned or burned preachers and printers, but it was all unavailing, and a little over a century and a half from the time that Henry changed the religion of his people, the people decided that it was easier to change their King than to conform in their religion. With the flight of James II. ended all attempts to prevent the people from having such primers and catechisms as they chose, leaving behind nothing but a restriction in the printing of the Bible and the Book of Common Prayer, which to this day are monopoly books in Great Britain.

Authorized and unauthorized Primers and A B Cs

THE authorized primers were not school books being rather primary—hence “primer”—manuals of church service, and indeed the forerunners of the “Book of Common Prayer”. Moreover they were handsomely printed, and thus were expensive. The authorized A B C which sold at a moderate price contained but the most elementary matter. It must have very quickly occurred to booksellers that to combine the two into one work would be a good idea, but as they were both monopoly books most printers were debarred from doing it and to the privileged printers there was no object in producing them at a low price. It was left, therefore, to the publishers of Separatist persuasion, to take advantage of the larger sale that could be obtained, and very quickly they were producing at low prices, books which contained the sum of both, and no doubt this cheapness and convenience played a prominent part in the spread of dissent. It was this union of the A B C and the Primer, which led to children’s books being called by the latter title.

*Union of the Primer and
A B C*

The earliest of this combination of school book and catechism, so far discovered, was Bastingius’ ‘Catechisme of Christiane Religion, taught in scholes’, which had the A B C prefixed to it, and was printed in Edinburgh in 1591.

In 1631 Bishop Bedell's catechism was printed in Dublin, in the same manner. "The A B C. The Catechism: That is to say, an instruction to be taught and learned of every Childe" was printed in 1636. Ten years later the "Catechism for young Children appointed by act of the Church of Scotland" was issued with the A B C, probably in Edinburgh. In England more care had to be taken, for as late as 1666, one Benjamin Keach was tried for writing "The Child's Instructor, or a New and Easy Primer", which contained a catechism with leanings towards anabaptism; but though the author was sentenced to the pillory, the book was constantly republished. A little later, in 1670 George Foxe issued his "Primer and Catechism" "with several delightful Things" intended to make a Quaker of the student.

One of the gravest difficulties to the early Separatists in both Old and New England, was the question of what catechism to teach their children. During the voyage of the Arbella the Puritans were catechised by their clergyman on Sunday, while no sooner were they landed than the Colony of Massachusetts Bay made a contract with sundry "intended ministers" for "catechising, as also in teaching, or causing to be taught the Companyes servants & their children, as also the salvages and their children";¹ and in this same year (1629) they voted the sum of three shillings for "2 dussen and ten catechismes".² It cannot certainly be known to what particular catechism these allusions refer, but it was probably the one composed by "that famous divine" William Perkins, preacher of St. Andrews Church in Cambridge, catechist for some time of Christ college, and one of the most distinguished Calvinists of the period. First printed in 1590,¹ this catechism ran through many editions in England, was republished with additions by John Robinson for the use of the pilgrims, and later was reprinted in New England.

Neglect of the Catechism in New England

Very quickly after the Puritan settling in America a tendency developed towards the individualism implied by all dissent and especially by Congregationalism. As a result of this diversity of belief, Lechford states that catechising was generally abandoned in many of the New England churches, and to meet this woeful condition the "General Corte" in 1641 "desired that the elders would make a Catechisme for the instruction of youth in the grounds of religion",² as well as to consider "howe farr the magistrates are bound to interfere for the preservacon of that vniformity & peace of the churches".

Multiplication of Catechisms

The request was only too readily responded to and in the period of 1641-1684 the reverend "teachers" John Davenport, John Cotton, John Eliot, Thomas Shepard, Richard Mather, John Fiske, John Norton, Seaborn Cotton, James Fitch, James Noyes, and Samuel Stone, each prepared one or more catechisms. In fact it is probable that every New England minister formulated his own faith in this manner, and at first thought it would seem to have been not a little trying to a congregation, on the the death of a trusted shepherd who had properly inducted them in his own belief, to get accustomed to the doctrines of a new incumbent. This difficulty was for the most part avoided by the general knowledge of what each clergyman thought, so that only one in fairly close accord with the congregation was considered. When a mistake occurred, and the clergyman was found to run counter to his church, they hastened to get rid of him, which resulted in the innumerable church quarrels and the schism with which New England so abounded.

Long after Cotton Mather asserted with evident pride that "few pastors of mankind ever took such pains at catechising as have been taken by our New England divines. Now, let any man living read the most judicious and elaborate catechisms published, a lesser and a larger by Mr. Norton, a lesser and a larger by Mr. Richard Mather, several by Mr. Cotton, one by Mr. Davenport and sundry others, and say whether true divinity were ever better handled".¹ As a fact, however, this very multiplicity of catechisms tended only to increase the schism and the New English clergy spent their energies in preparing catechisms and quarreling over them rather than in attempting the "instruction of youth" and the "vniformity and peace of the churches". John Cotton though responsible himself for so much of the disputation, was forced to acknowledge that "the excellent and necessary use of catechising young men, and novices, . . . we willingly acknowledge: But little benefit have wee seene reaped from set forms of questions, and answers by one Church, and imposed by necessity on another".²

Not till the great Westminster Assembly formulated its longer and shorter catechisms, did the New England Churches find a common faith, and even then, as the work of Presbyterians and not Congregationalists, they were accepted only by degrees, not because they were generally approved, but because they were the only escape from a tendency that threatened to break each congregation into fractions too small for existence as a church.

The New England
Primer

SUCH was the condition of school books and catechisms, when the New England Primer was first published. Its authorship and date of issue have hitherto been mysteries that have resisted the research of all antiquarians, but it is at last possible to give the main facts concerning its origin.

Benjamin
Harris,
Printer

In the reign of King Charles of "merrie" memory, one Benjamin Harris began printing in London "at the Stationers Arms in Sweethings Rents, near the Royal Exchange", otherwise described as "the Stationers Arms under the Piazza in Cornhill". Here he issued, between the years 1676 and 1681 many tracts and broadsides of so little moment that his name finds no mention in any biographical dictionary or history of printing. But aside from his calling, Harris deserves notice as a confirmed scribbler, resembling Mr. Wegg, in his tendency to drop into verse. To this was added an ardent love for the protestant religion, and an equal hatred of the Pope and all that he implied.

So long as the printer limited his activity to the writing and printing of ballads and tracts against the Pope and the Jesuits under such titles as "The Grand Imposter" and "The Mystery of Iniquity", all went well with him, but in 1679, in connection with the "Rye House Plot" he issued "An Appeal from the Country to the City, for the Preservation of His Majesties Person and the Protestant Religion". The King's government did not take the same view of the question that Mr. Harris had, and as a result he was brought to trial for the "printing and vending" of this tract. The courtly tendency towards Catholicism gave little chance for the printer, and the chief justice, after remarking that if he had his wish, the printer should be whipped, ordered him to find security for his good behavior for three years.¹

brought to trial*

Unwarned by his experience, Harris in 1681 printed a "Protestant Petition", and was once more haled before the court and this time the judge fined him five hundred pounds and ordered him put in the pillory. This meant that he was to be stoned by the crowd which always gathered, but from that fate he was saved, for "his Wife (like a Kind Rib) stood by him to defend her Husband against the Mobb".² For this act, his enemies promptly turned their abuse upon the woman, and scurrilous ballads entitled "The Saint turned Courtezan" and the "Protestant Cuckold" endeavored to bring discredit upon her. The printer apparently did not recover from the mulct, for he seems to have ceased printing from that time.

Removes to Boston in New England

Upon the death of Charles II. and the succession of Catholic James "Old England" wrote John Dunton from Boston "is now so uneasie a Place for honest Men, that those that can will seek out for another Countrey: And this I suppose is the Case of Mr. Benjamin Harris and the two Mr. Hows, whom I hear are coming hither, and to whom I wish a good Voyage. Mr. Ben Harris, you know, has been a noted Publick Man in England, and I think the Book of English Liberties was done for him . . . No wonder then that in this Reign they meet with Enemies".¹

Sets up a bookshop and coffee-house

Come to Boston Harris did and late in 1686 he set up a book and "Coffee, Tee and Chucaletto" shop,² by the Town-Pump near the Change". A year later his imprint reads "at the London Coffee House" and he was employing the printers of the town to print pamphlets and broadsides for him. Here too he was quickly involved with the authorities, for in 1690 he issued, without permission, the first newspaper printed in America, under the title of "Public Occurrences"; which was promptly suppressed by proclamation. In 1691 he formed a partnership with John Allen, and seems to have set up a press of his own. A year later he became "Printer to His Excellency the Governor and Council", and removed his business to a "Shop, over against the Old-Meeting House", making another remove in 1694 to a place which he called "The Sign of the Bible, over against the Blew-Anchor", having ended his relations with Allen.

In the meantime the English people had stood firm to their religion and had rid themselves of their king, so that now Old England was once more safe to haters of popery. Better still, King William, whose advent Harris hailed in a poem beginning:

the land,
When JAMES your Martyr’s Son, your LAWS

had freed the press from the worst features of governmental restraint. Accordingly, Harris returned to London towards the end of 1695, and opened a new printing office at the “Maiden-Head-Court in Great East Cheap”, and later Dunton writes that he “continu’d Ben Harris still; and is now both Bookseller and Printer, in Grace-church Street, as we find by his London Post; so that his conversation is general (but never Impertinent) and his Wit pliable to all Inventions. But yet his vanity (if he has any) gives no Alloy to his Wit, and is no more than might justly Spring from conscious Vertue; and I do him but Justice in this part of his Character, for in once travelling with him from Bury Fair, I found him to be the most Ingenious and Innocent Companion that I had ever met with”. When Harris died cannot be discovered, but it was after 1708.

BEFORE his flight in 1686 to Boston (according to Dunton) “Mr. Harris I think also Printed the Protestant Tutor, a Book not at all relish’d by the Popish Party, because it is the design of that little Book to bring up Children in an Aversion to Popery".¹ No copy of this first English edition is known to exist, but from a later edition² its character proves it to be the legitimate predecessor of the New England Primer, for it contains the Alphabet, followed by the Syllabarium, the "Alphabet of Lessons", the Lord's Prayer, Creed, and Ten Commandments, the Poem of John Rogers with the picture of his burning, the "figures and numeral Letters", and the "Names of the Books of the Bible", all of which were embodied in the New England Primer.

Primer*

On his arrival in Boston it was obviously the interest of Harris to get out a new edition of this little book, for its chance of success was even greater among the popery-hating New Englanders, than that it had already met with in Old England. The poverty of the people made prudent an abridgement of the "Tutor" and thus it was reduced to smaller bulk; to make it the more saleable the school book character was increased, while to give it an even better chance for success by an appeal to local pride, it was rechristened and came forth under the now famous title.

No copy of this first edition of the New England Primer is known and thus the exact date of its appearance cannot be given. Harris did not arrive in Boston till near the end of 1686, and the only publication he issued in that year was an almanac for 1687, which Sewall bought on December 6, 1686. Between that time and Jan. 5, 1688, Harris made a trip to England, and on Nov. 22, 1688, he again sailed for London.³ It was between 1687 and 1690

FIRST MENTION OF NEW ENGLAND PRIMER

From Newman's News from the Stars. Boston: 1600

therefore that the first edition of the Primer was issued. Its success seems to have been immediate, for in Henry Newman's almanac entitled "News from the Stars", "Printed by R. Peirce for Benjamin Harris at the London Coffee-House in Boston, 1691" (and consequently printed late in 1690) the last leaf advertised a "second Impression of The New England Primer, Enlarged".

A very essential piece of evidence in regard to the date of the book is connected with the earliest (supposed) fragment of the Primer known. This consists of four leaves, and was found bound up as waste in the binding of a copy of Daniel Leeds "Temple of Wisdom" as printed by William Bradford at Philadelphia in 1688. From this it has been argued that "these leaves probably came from a Philadelphia reprint of a Boston edition of the Primer which must have been published at least as early as 1687". The evidence of this does not seem adequate. There is no proof that the volume was bound in the year that it was printed, nor can it be decided for certain that the fragments are a reprint of the Primer, the chances being quite as favorable of their being part of an edition of the Protestant Tutor. All that can be said of these leaves is that they are the earliest known fragments of a book compiled by Benjamin Harris, and that they were printed by William Bradford either in Philadelphia or New York between 1687 and 1700. From other facts known of Bradford this was presumably a stealing of Harris's book and is therefore an early American case of literary theft.

The book proved so great a success in New England that when its compiler returned to Old England, he continued to publish it. In a work¹ printed by him in 1701 is advertised at the end, among other "Books Printed and Sold by B. Harris at the Golden Boar's-Head in Gracechurch St.", "The New England Primer Enlarged; For the more easy attaining the true Reading of English. To which is added Milk for Babes." He seems to have also published editions of it under a title which would make it more attractive to the English public, for in the reign of Queen Anne (1702-1714) he issued what is presumably the same text as his New England Primer, under the title of "The New English Tutor".² But the other title proved the more popular, and under it numerous editions were printed in England and Scotland, even into the nineteenth century.

Success of the Primer in New England

It was in New England, however, that its great success was achieved. Primer to printer and people there soon meant only the New England Primer, all other varieties being specially designated to show that they were not of the popular kind. Copies of the little book were as much a matter of "stock" in the bookshops of the towns and general stores of the villages as the Bible itself. In the inventory of Michael Perry, a Boston bookseller, filed in 1700, is entered "28 Primmers" and "44 doz. Primmers",³ and standard advertisements in newspapers and books announced that such and such a printer has for sale "Bibles, Testaments, Psalters, Psalm-Books, Primers, Account Books and Books of Record". Indeed it was so taken for granted that copies were in stock, that many printers and booksellers did not think the fact worth advertising.

Occasionally printers tried to better the sale by re-naming it, as when Thomas Green issued it in New London with the title of "A Primer for the Colony of Connecticut" and Henry de Foreest printed it at New York as "The New York Primer". When the United States became a fact, it was several times printed under the titles of "The American Primer", or "The Columbian Primer". But the variations were not popular, the ventures did not succeed the better, and eventually the "New England Primer" became the deservedly established title.

Changes of titles

For one hundred years this Primer was the school-book of the dissenters of America, and for another hundred, it was frequently reprinted. In the unfavorable locality (in a sectarian sense) of Philadelphia, the accounts of Benjamin Franklin and David Hall show that between 1749 and 1766, or a period of seventeen years, that firm sold thirty-seven thousand one hundred copies. Livermore stated in 1849 that within the last dozen years "100,000 copies of modern editions . . . have been circulated". An over-conservative claim for it is to estimate an annual average sale of twenty thousand copies during a period of one hundred and fifty years, or total sales of three million copies.

Magnitude of sales

DESPITE this enormous number, early editions of the New England Primer are among the rarest of school-books. Edward Coote, in his "Eng-

Rarity of the Primer, and the reasons

lish Schoole-Master" (London 1597) recommended to purchasers of his book, that :

"If, notwithstanding any former reasons, thou doubtist that thy little child will have spoyled this booke before it bee learned; thou maist fitly diuide it at the end of the second booke, or thou mayest reserve faire the written copies, vntill he can read."

When to the destruction of the child, is added the slight value set by adults on children's books of their own time, it is not strange that works intended for the instruction or amusement of the young should constitute one of the rarest of all classes of literature.

Difficulty of studying and collecting

This destruction and heedlessness has made a study of the New England Primer an almost hopeless undertaking. Though eagerly searched for by many collectors in the last fifty years, no copy of a seventeenth century edition of the work has been discovered, and this search has brought to light less than forty editions and less than fifty copies of New England Primers printed in the eighteenth century. Although as already noted Franklin and Hall printed over thirty-seven thousand copies between 1749 and 1766 (and as Franklin printed an edition as early as 1735 and Hall as late as 1779 it is probable that they issued at least double that number), but a single copy with their imprints is known to exist. Thomas states that Fowle printed about 1757 one edition of 10,000 copies, but not a single primer with his imprint is extant. This is typical of the majority of the issues.

*Collectors of
the Primer*

George Livermore, the first collector of the little book, who began about 1840, only succeeded in getting two eighteenth century editions: Providence, 1775, and Hartford, 1777. George Brinley, enjoying equal advantage in priority and eagerness of search, after forty years of collecting, only obtained nine primers of that century, Boston, 1737, Boston, 1768, Boston, 1770, Concord, 1776, Boston, 1777, Boston, 1784, Newburyport [1795?], Philadelphia 1797, and Medford, 1798. An early collection of Primers made by Ira Webster, who in 1843 reprinted the earliest copy then known (Boston 1777), later came into the hands of Dr. Henry Barnard, whose notable work in the history and development of American education interested him in this book, and who after many years of faithful gathering, has brought together editions as follows: Boston, [1738?] (badly imperfect), Boston, 1770, Providence, 1775, Boston, 1781, Portsmouth, [1795?], Newburyport, [1795?], and Philadelphia, 1797. A fourth collector, Mr. E. Dwight Church, has succeeded in obtaining copies of editions: Boston, 1738, and Boston, 1762, the first of which he purchased of Messrs. Dodd Mead & Co., who had catalogued it at three hundred dollars, and the second was bought for him at the Brayton Ives sale for one hundred and five dollars. This latter, in condition, is the finest copy extant. Bishop John F. Hurst has gathered copies of the primer: Boston, 1771, [No place], 1782, Salem, 1784, Boston, 1791, New York, 1794, and Boston, [1795?].

The latter collections above noted are still in existence, but those of Mr. Livermore and Mr. Brinley were sold at the respective auction sales of their libraries, and have gone to largely form the two finest collections of the Primer now existing. The first of these in condition and completeness is that owned by Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, which consists of the six choicest specimens formerly owned by Mr. Brinley, and were bought at the sale of his library for the sum of six hundred and twelve dollars for the lot. Scarcely less valuable is the series possessed by the Lenox Library. This contains the earliest known edition in existence, unfortunately slightly imperfect, which was purchased at private sale for the library in 1876 by Dr. George H. Moore for the absurdly low price of five dollars. A copy of a London, 1767, edition was added through the liberality of Mr. Alexander Maitland who bought it for one hundred dollars and presented it to the library. From the Livermore sale copies of editions: Providence, 1775 and Hartford, 1777, were obtained at the price of ninety dollars each. More recently Boston editions of 1791 and 1795 were purchased.

Minor collections

Among the less important collections in public libraries, is that of the American Antiquarian Society, which has copies of editions: Boston, 1795, Newburyport, [1795?], Newbury, [1795?], and Medford 1798. The Connecticut Historical Society has a Primer, London 1771; Brown University one, Boston, [1795?] and the Massachusetts Historical Society one, Paisley, 1781. An edition printed in Boston in 1770 is in the Woburn (Mass.) Public Library, and one printed in the same place a year later is the property of the Sheldon Art Museum at Middlebury, Vt. The British Museum has a Newburyport, [1795?], edition, but far more interesting is its unique copy of the "New English Tutor" reprinted in this volume. The Historical Society of Pennsylvania possesses the four leaves of the Bradford fragment, supposed to be a portion of the earliest edition known.

Thou shalt not cover thy Neighbour's House, thou shalt not covet thy Neighbour's Wife, nor his Man-Servant, nor his Ox, nor his Ass, nor any thing that is thy Neighbours.

These Words which I Command thee this day shall be in thy Heart, Deut. 6: 6.

Quest. What dost thou chiefly learn by these ten Commandments?

Child. I learn two things, my Duty towards God, and my Duty towards my Neighbour.

Quest. What is thy Duty towards

Child. My Duty towards God is to believe in him, to fear and to love him with all my heart, with all my Mind, with all my Soul, and with all my strength: To Worship him, to give him thanks, to put my whole trust in him, to call upon him. to honour his holy Name and his Word, and to serve him truly all the days of my Life.

Qu. What is thy Duty towards thy Neighbour?

Child. My Duty towards my Neighbour is to love him as my self, and to do to all men as I would they should do to me: To love, honour and succour my Father and Mother, To honour and obey the King and all his Ministers, and to carry all thou wouldst not hear,

turn a deaf Ear;
And now in thy Calumny,
I will not mind, nor hear thy Cry:
Thy Day is past, be gone from me,
Thou which didst love Iniquity
Above thy Soul or Saviour dear,
Who on the Cross great pain did bear,
My Mercy thou didst much abuse,
And all good Counsel didst refuse,
ce will therefore Vengeance take,
but a sad Example make.

Yoush,
me, Lord, forbear thy hand,
ut me off, who trembling stand,
for Mercy at thy Door,

If thou some longer time shouldst have
Thou wouldst again so Folly cleave
Therefore to thee I will not give
One day on Earth longer to live.

Death.

Yoush, I am come to fetch thy Breath,
And carry thee to th' shades of Death,
No pity I can on thee show,
Thou hast thy God offended so.
Thy Soul and Body I'll divide,
Thy Body in the Grave I'll hide,
And thy dear Soul in Hell must lie
With Devils to Eternity.

Thus ends the Days of wofull
Who won't obey nor mind the Truth

To all these collectors and institutions the writer is under the greatest obligation for their uniform courtesy and assistance. He must also add his especial indebtedness to Mr. Wilberforce Eames, Librarian of the Lenox Library, for constant aid in the preparation of this work and as well for his kindness in overlooking the proof sheets.

Obligation of the editor

ALTHOUGH each printer of the New England Primer changed title and text to suit his taste or business interests, certain unmistakable ear-marks, or what the naturalist would term "limit of organic variation", serve to mark beyond question every edition of the Primer, however titled or altered. The printers of other school-books often inserted fragments of the more famous Primer in their ventures, but this neither deceived the public then or the book lover now, the true Primer being too sharply differentiated from all others for there to be the possibility of confusion.

Variations of Primer

Every New England Primer, like many others, began with the letters of the alphabet, followed by various repetitions making clear the distinctions between vowels, consonants, double letters, italic and capitals. After this came what was called "Easy Syllables for Children," or as it was frequently termed, the "syllabarium," beginning with such combinations as "ab, eb, ib, ob, ub," followed by words of one syllable which lengthened by degrees to imposing vocabularies of six syllables. It is to be noted however, that occasionally when the printer was cramped for space, he limited the ambition of the student by dropping out these polysyl-

The alphabet and syllabarium

labic words, and gave only the shorter ones. This whole elementary section of the primer had been used in Coote's "The English Schoolmaster" as early as 1596, and may have been framed by him, but as the first part is practically what went to make the Horn-Book of the period, its antiquity may be far greater than Coote's book.

The omission of the ✠

One apparently trivial distinction in the text as given in the New England Primer, yet which had a deep motive, is the omission at the beginning of the alphabet of the ✠ which otherwise was so almost invariably placed there, as to give to the first line of the alphabet the name of "Christ's Cross-Row" or as it was more commonly termed "the Cris Cross Row." In Morton's "New English Canaan" he speaks of "a silenced Minister" who came over to New England and brought "a great Bundell of Horne books with him and careful hee was (good man) to blott out all the crosses of them for feare least the people of the land should become Idolaters." Of this Puritan dread of the cross, the New England Primer always took heed, and no edition is known, even in those prepared for Episcopalians, to contain the oldest religious emblem now worshipped.

Alphabet of lessons

Usually following the syllabarium, was what was called "An Alphabet of Lessons for Youth," being a series of moral and instructive sentences taken from the Bible, so worded and arranged as to begin each paragraph with a successive capital letter of the alphabet, the sole exception being in the case of X, for that letter proved beyond the ability of the compiler to find a sentence beginning properly, and he dodged the issue in the following manner :

"eXhort one another daily".

In every "New England Primer" the Lord's Prayer and Apostles' Creed were included, and while their position was varied, they commonly followed the "Alphabet of Lessons."

The Lord's Prayer and the Creed

NEXT in order of what went to make the Primer famous were the twenty-four little pictures, with alphabetical rhymes, commencing

The Rhymed Alphabet

*"In Adam's Fall
We sinned All".*

—A description of the beginning of original sin which certainly did its best to balance our first forebears' very ungenerous version of the affair which to the Puritan was the greatest event in history.

This method of teaching the alphabet by short poems was of much older date. As early as 1552 there was printed in England a little tract entitled "Alphabetum primum Be-cardi," which consisted of rhymes to each of the letters, and another work of this period of exactly the same character was entitled "Finch his Alphabet". A little later a broad-side was issued headed "All the Letters of the A.B.C. by every sondrye Letter wherof ther is a good Document set fourth and taught in Ryme. Translated out of Bas-Almaine into English, anno 1575". An even further development of this was contained in Wastell's "Microbiblion, or the Bibles Epitome"¹ (London 1629) containing the sum of the whole, in verse so capitalized as to form successive alphabets.

phabets*

Authorship and Date of Writing

Who was the author of the New England Primer alphabet verses is not known, no text of it before its printing in that work having been found. It could not have been written long before the first appearance of that book, for the rhyme :

“ The Royal Oak
It was the Tree
That sav’d his Royal Majesty.”

by its allusion to King Charles, clearly shows it to have been composed after 1660. All this points to the compiler of the Primer as its author, for in other poems he expresses the greatest admiration for the Merrie Monarch, as already noted, he was continually scribbling verse quite of the character of the rhymed alphabet, and this gives a strong suspicion that it is from the pen of Harris.

Wide variation in text

It is a curious fact that of all these twenty-four stanzas only the first one, relating to Adam, was not at some time varied or changed, and these variations give a curious illustration of some very important alterations of public opinion. Thus in the earliest text extant,¹ at the letter J is given a picture of the crucifixion, with the stanza

“ Sweet Jesus he Dy’d on a Tree.”

And in an English school-book of other character than the Primer, this was unchanged. The Puritan, however, would not tolerate even this use of the cross, and so very quickly the picture was changed to one of Job, and the rhyme to “Job feels the rod Yet blesses God.”

Perhaps the most curious change is that connected with the letter K. Allusion has been made to Harris’s admiration for King Charles, and there is good evidence that for this letter originally there was a picture of that monarch and the stanza read

From King to Demos

*“King Charles the Good
No Man of Blood.”¹*

Presently however the King was dead, and in a little time another king in the form of William III. for whom Harris also felt a strong admiration, was reigning over England. Thereupon the portrait and stanza were presumably changed by the insertion of one singing his praises. When William died however Harris did not displace his portrait, but calling into play his poetic fancy, he affixed to the old cut, the lines

*“K. William’s Dead and left the throne
To Ann our Queen of great Renown.”²*

This necessity of changing with each new reign seems to have proved a nuisance, and so someone presently hit upon the device of being always in date, by making the rhyme read

*“Our King the good
No man of blood.”³*

¹ See stanza as printed in “A Guide for the Child”, infra. ² “New English Tutor”, infra.

³ See “New England Primer”, Boston : 1727, infra.

For many years this form was satisfactory, but finally the Americans began to question if after all the King was good. To meet this doubt, printers easily changed the praise into admonition by printing

*“Kings should be good
Not men of Blood.”¹*

Finally washing their hands of monarchy, rhyme too was abandoned, and the stanza became

“The British King Lost States thirteen.”²

varied occasionally by another form which announced that

*“Queens and Kings
Are gaudy things.”³*

The letter Q

Akin to this in both democratic sentiment and verse were revised lines for Q, to the effect that

“Kings and Queens Lie in the dust.”⁴

From Royal Oak to Charter Oak

In the same manner, the rhyme already quoted, about the royal oak, became unfit poetry for young republicans, and in attempts to vary it wide divergence crept in, resulting in the following forms :

*“The Royal Oak,
our King did save
From fatal Stroke of Rebel Slave.”⁵*

*“If you seek in the forest
The Oak you will see Among all the rest is the stateliest tree.”⁶*

That sail the sea."¹

"The Charter Oak

"The Owl at night

"The Oak for shade

Another injection of patriotism was made in the letter W. Originally this was

"Whales in the sea Gods voice obey."

The Primer crowns
Washington

In some editions of the Primers printed after the American revolution this somewhat difficult rhyme was omitted, and in its place was one of the following

"Great Washington brave "By Washington
His country did save."⁴ Great deeds were done."⁵

All the foregoing were haphazard changes by various printers, but a more sweeping alteration was made between 1740 and 1760. As originally written⁶ many of the verses had a decidedly mundane quality, and so some New England writer or printer undertook within that period, to evangelize⁷ those lines which had an earthly tendency. What was accomplished, is shown in parallel column :

Much later, in the present century when children’s books began to cater to what a child would like, a reactionary spirit reversed this evangelization and stanzas of worldly tendency were actually inserted in place of them in some editions. These substitution verses were :

John Rogers’
Exhortation unto his children*

EVEN more famous than the rhymed alphabet, is the poem of John Rogers, with the picture of the martyr burning at the stake, and “his Wife, with Nine small Children, and one at her Breast” looking on. Much sadness this poem and print must have cost the Puritan mind, and even now, it is capable of producing a sigh, no longer because one feels so keenly for the man, who regardless of wife and children, insisted on being burnt, and really forced the court against its will to make a martyr of him, but because a study of the facts shows that the use of this poem and story, was nothing but a piece of sectarian garbling and falsehood, and that all the pity spent upon it by millions of readers was no more deserved than that lavished upon the unfortunate heroes and heroines of fiction.

The history of the poem so far as can be learned is as follows. In the sixteenth century there lived a man of whom Foxe, in his "Book of Martyrs," wrote:

"Robert Smith gave himself to service in the house of sir Thomas Smith, knight, being then provost of Eaton: from thence he was preferred to Windsor, having there in the college a clerkship of ten pounds a year. Of stature he was tall and slender, active about many things, but chiefly delighting in the art of painting, which many times rather for his mind's sake, than for any gain, he did practice and exercise. In religion he was fervent, after he had once tasted the truth; wherein he was much confirmed by the preaching of Mr. Turner, of Windsor, and others. Whereupon at the coming of Queen Mary he was deprived of his clerkship by her visitors; and not long after he was apprehended, and brought to examination before Bonner."

Foxe's account of Robert Smith

At this point Foxe inserts an account of the trial where Smith:

"vailantly stood in defence of his master's cause: and as thou seest him here boldly stand in examination before the bishop and doctors; so was he no less comfortable also in the prison among his companions: which also is to be observed no less in his other fellow-prisoners, who being together in the outward room in Newgate, had godly conference with themselves, with daily praying and public reading, which they to their great comfort used in that room together;

amongst whom Smith was the chief; whose industry was always solicitous, not only for them of his own company, but also his diligence was careful for other prisoners, whom he ceased not to dissuade from their old accustomed iniquity; and many he converted to his religion.

Burning at the Stake

“The said Robert Smith, the valiant and constant martyr of Christ, being thus replenished as ye have heard, with the fortitude of God’s Spirit, was condemned at London by Bonner their bishop, on the 12th of July; and suffered at Uxbridge the 8th day of August; who as he had been before a comfortable instrument of Good to all them that were in prison with him: so now also being at the stake, he did no less comfort the people, there standing about him, willing them to think well of his cause, and not to doubt but that his body dying in the quarrel, should rise again to life. And, said he, I doubt not but God will show you some token thereof. At length he being well nigh half burnt, and all black with fire, clustered together as in a lump like a black coal, all men thinking him dead, suddenly rose upright before the people, lifting up the stumps of his arms, and clapping the same together, declaring a rejoicing heart unto them; and so bending down again, and hanging over the fire, slept in the Lord, and ended this mortal life.”

*Robert Smith
as a writer*

To a skill in painting, Mr. Smith added one in letters, and Foxe states that “while in prison he wrote several letters to his friends, some in verse, and others in prose”. These poetical letters were nearly all in the same metre, part of one to a friend reading:

*Poetical Letter

*“And now because I know the goal
That thou dost most desire
I send thee here a paper full,
As fined in the fire*”

*In hope thou wilt accept it well
 Although it be but small
 Because I have no other good
 To make amends withal.”¹*

To his brother he also wrote, bespeaking his care for his wife and *“Also my daughter dear

 Whom I bequeath to thee
 To be brought up in fear
 And learn the A B C
 That she may grow in grace
 And ruled by the rod
 To learn and lead her life
 Within the fear of God.”*

*Poetical Letter
 to his Brother*

Far surpassing these poems in popularity, however, was the “Exhortation vnto his children” which he penned at this same time. Written in the year in which he was burned (1555), it seems to have been printed first in 1559 when the Stationers Company directed that “Owyn Rogers hath lycense to prynte the Instruction for Chyldren”.² It was accordingly issued in that year, in a little tract of Puritan writings, on the title of which it was termed “An exhortation of Mathewe Rogers, vnto his children,” in the body of the work it was retitled “The instruction of a Father to his Children, which he wrote a few days before his burnynge”, and at the end it was signed “Finis quod Mathewe Rogers”.³ It apparently proved a work of some popularity for in 1577 the Stationers Company "Licensed vnto" John Arnold the issuing of another edition of the tract.

Substitution of Rogers' Name

Why the name of Mathewe Rogers was substituted for that of the true writer can not be discovered, unless, Rogers being the earliest, and therefore the best known of the "reformed" Martyrs, the printer reasoned that his name would cause a greater sale. The change of his true cognomen John to Mathew, is more easily explained, for under the pen name of Thomas Mathew, Rogers had helped Tyndale in translating the scriptures, and thus he was often called Mathew Rogers.

*New England
Primer account of John Rogers*

But this foisting of the poem of Smith on to Rogers by no means ended the garbling. In the New England Primer, a short sketch of Rogers was inserted, as follows :

"Mr. John Rogers Minister of the Gospel in London, was the First Martyr in Queen Mary's Reign, and was burnt in Smithfield, February the 14th, 1554. His Wife with nine small Children, and one at her Breast, follow'd him to the Stake, with which sorrowful Sight, he was not in the least daunted, but with wonderful Patience, Dyed courageously for the Gospel of Jesus Christ."

*True account of John
Rogers*

This is more remarkable for misstatement than for fact. Rogers was a priest sworn to celibacy, who becoming converted, broke his vow and took unto himself a wife. When, on the accession of Mary, he refused to put the woman away, he was condemned to death, and was burned at the stake on February 4th, 1555, ("old style" February the 14, 1554) being, as Foxe said "the first martyr of all the blessed company that suffered in Queen Mary's time, that gave the first adventure upon the fire".¹ Furthermore, his wife and children did not see him burned, for Foxe merely stated that: "His wife and children, being eleven in number, ten able to go, and one sucking at her breast, met him by the way as he went towards Smithfield: this sorrowful sight of his own flesh and blood could nothing move him, but he constantly and cheerfully took his death with wonderful patience, in the defence of the gospel of Christ".

Worth noting in this connection is one question over which there has been much controversy, being the exact number of children thus left fatherless. The Primer, as will be seen, gave him "nine small children and one at the breast" but printers read this differently, sometimes giving nine, and sometimes ten, in the picture. At his trial, Rogers said distinctly that he had ten children, while Foxe¹ speaks of his "children, being eleven in number, ten able to go, and one sucking". The explanation of this discrepancy is probably due to the fact that Rogers was held in prison for over a year, and debarred during that period from all news of his wife, in which time it is obvious the eleventh child was born, since at the time of his burning it was still unweaned.

OF greater importance than the Roger verses but of far less popularity was the Catechism, which usually followed close upon the poem. In all eighteenth century Primers examined this consisted of either the Westminster Assembly's "Shorter Catechism" or John Cotton's "Spiritual Milk for Babes" and in a number of editions both were included. Several nineteenth century editions of the New England Primer contained besides the Assembly's Catechism, the Episcopal as well, but no early edition found contains what was so alien to all the rest of the work.

History of the Shorter Catechism

The Shorter Catechism was framed by the great Westminster Assembly, which was called together by the Round-Head Parliament and was composed of one hundred and twenty-one clergymen or presbyters, thirty of the laity, chiefly of the nobility, and five special commissioners from Scotland, and Baxter claimed "that the Christian world, since the days of the Apostles, never had a Synod of more excellent divines". This assembly met first on July 10, 1643, and dissolved itself on March 3, 1649, having held in the six years no less than eleven hundred and sixty-three sessions.

Length and consequent loathing

Compared to Herbert's catechism entitled "The Careful Father and Pious Child" (London, 1648) which contained over twelve hundred questions and answers, the assembly's catechism might well be termed "shorter". As a fact however this title was given merely to distinguish it from the larger catechism put forth by this Assembly, and its one hundred and seven questions, the answers to which ranged in length from eight to one hundred words, made it a nightmare to children. Rev. Heman Humphreys, though a congregational clergyman and the president of Amherst college, acknowledged that his recollection "accords with the experience of thousands, who like myself, once loathed the Assembly's Catechism",¹ and when it is considered that children of four and five years of age were expected to repeat, with absolute verbal correctness, the terrible answers defining “justification”, “sanctification”, and “glorification”, or stand disgraced in the eyes of the whole congregation, the word seems by no means too strong. Another clergyman acknowledged that “when the Venerable Assembly composed this form of Instruction, it seems that few of themselves tho’t it design’d or fitted for Babes, some answers being so long and so full of great sense that tho’ they might recite the Words, that can be of little Benefit, till they also apprehend the meaning”.¹

None the less the children were drilled in this catechism unsparingly. In church and at school it was almost a daily task. As if this were not sufficient Cotton Mather even advised mothers to catechise their children “every day”, adding “you may be continually dropping something of the Catechism upon them: Some Honey out of the Rock!” and he told parents that:

“The Souls of your Children made a Cry in your Ears, O Parents; a cry enough to break an Heart of Adamant. They are Born Children of Wrath; and when they grow up, you have no way to Save them from the dreadful Wrath of God, if you do not Catechise them in the Way of Salvation. They cry to you; O our dear Parents; Acquaint us with the Great God, and His Glorious Christ, that so Good may come unto us! Let us not go from your Tender Knees, down to the Place of Dragons. Oh! Not Parents, but Ostriches: Not Parents, but Prodigies! What, but more cruel than the Sea-Monsters are the Parents, who will not be moved by such Thoughts as these, to Draw out the Breasts of the Catechism, unto their Young Ones! One would think, Parents, Your own Bowels, if you have not Monstrously lost them, would Suggest enough to persuade you unto the Pleasant Labours of the Catechism."

Yet even Mather acknowledged that the Shorter Catechism had difficulties for very young children, by preparing a briefer and simpler one, that instead of taxing children of the "Youngest and Lowest Capacities," with the catechism of the Assembly, "This little Watering Pot may be quickly so used upon the little Olive Plants about our tables, that, not a drop of the heavenly dew contained in it shall escape them".¹

Sermonizing on the Catechism

Nor was the catechism used only for the catechising of the younger generation, for it was frequently made the subject of sermons to the elder portions of the congregation, Mather relating that Rev. John Fiske "chose the Assembly's Catechism for his public expositions, wherewith he twice went over it, in his discourses before his afternoon sermons." The largest book printed in New England before the nineteenth century, was Samuel Willard's "Complete Body of Divinity in Two Hundred and Fifty Expository Lectures on the Assembly's Shorter Catechism"—a mammoth folio of over nine hundred pages, of such popularity that before publication more than five hundred subscribers were obtained, many of whom bespoke more than one copy, and some as many as sixteen.²

Early editions of the Primer and the Catechism

It has been questioned whether the Assembly's Catechism appeared in the very earliest editions of the New England Primer, but from the fact that Harris printed a separate edition of the catechism in the same year that the second impression of the Primer was issued, and from the fact that it formed part of the Bradford edition, which is thought to be the earliest Primer fragment known, the evidence seems far more in favor of its inclusion than against it.

EQUALLY popular at first in America was John Cotton's "Spiritual Milk for American Babes," Mather being authority for the statement that in 1697 "the children of New England are to this day most usually fed with this excellent catechism"¹ and he called it "peculiarly, The Catechism of New England."

*Cotton's

Of the author Mather wrote :

"Were I master of the pen, wherewith Palladius embalmed his Chrysostom, the Greek patriarch, or Posidonius eternized his Austin, the Latin oracle, among the ancients ; or, were I owner of the quill wherewith among the moderns, Beza celebrated his immortal Calvin, or Fabius immortalized his venerable Beza ; the merits of John Cotton would oblige me to employ it, in the preserving his famous memory".²

Some Account of Mr. Cotton

It is sufficient to say that he was born in 1585, went through Cambridge University and became successively fellow of Trinity College, Dean of Emmanuel College, and minister at Boston in Lincolnshire. Becoming while there a non-conformist, he was "silenced" for a while, but eventually was allowed once more to preach, and in his twenty years pastorate at Boston "he thrice went over the body of divinity in a catechistical way, and besides his 'Lord's day' sermons" gave "his ordinary lecture every week, on the week days, namely on Wednesdays and Thursdays, early in the morning, and on Saturdays, at three in the afternoon", with such results to Boston that "religion was embraced, and practiced among the body of the people; yea the mayor, with most part of the magistrates, were now called Puritans, and the Satanical party was become insignificant".

Flies to America and becomes a Leader

Finally the High Commission Court, popularly known as the Star Chamber began proceedings against him, and changing name and garb, Cotton took ship for New England with two other clergymen, the three lightening the tedium of the passage by daily sermons "all the while they were aboard, yea they had three sermons, or expositions, for the most part every day: of Mr. Cotton in the morning, Mr. Hooker in the afternoon, Mr. Stone after supper in the evening". Upon arriving at Boston he was promptly made "teacher" of the first church there, and very quickly came to wield a power in that theocratic settlement akin to that now exercised by a political boss. He was invited to return to England when the Puritans gained the upper hand, to take part in the "Westminster Assembly" but declined. Nothing perhaps better typifies the man than when on "being asked why in his latter days he indulged in nocturnal studies more than formerly, he pleasantly replied, Because I love to sweeten my mouth with a piece of Calvin before I go to sleep".¹

Cotton presumably prepared the Milk for Babes in 1641, at the time the "General Corte" asked the elders to prepare a catechism, as already recorded, and probably it was printed at Cambridge by Daye, between 1641 and 1645. No copy of this edition is known however, and the first edition of which a copy is now extant is one printed in London in 1646. It was again printed there in 1648, and in 1668, and in 1656 an edition was issued at Cambridge in New England. After 1690 its inclusion in many editions of the New England Primer somewhat checked the printing of separate editions but an edition in the Indian tongue was printed at Boston in 1691, and this was reprinted in 1720. In 1702 Mather abridged and combined it with the Assembly's catechism and one of his own and issued it under the title of "Maschil, or The Faithful Instructor",¹ and other editions of this form of the work were issued with the title of "The Man of God Furnished"² and "The Way of Truth laid out".³ In these, Mather asserted that Milk for Babes "will be valued and studied and improved until New England cease to be New England."

Prepares Milk for Babes

While by no means as popular as Mr. Cotton's metaphorical title would lead one to expect, it must be confessed that it is a decided improvement on the Shorter Catechism, if not in soundness of doctrine, at least in length. In place of one hundred and seven questions, there were but sixty-four and instead of replies ranging in length from eight to one hundred words, one answer was a single word, and the longest only contained eighty-four.

Dialogue between Christ, Youth and the Devil

THE last piece of any importance which can be considered an integrant of the New England Primer, is what was called "A Dialogue between Christ, Youth and the Devil", a poem relating to a tempted youth, who despite the warning of his Redeemer succumbs to the wiles of the horny footed tempter, and makes an effective exit at the end of the dialogue without the assistance of any stage directions, but with, it is presumable, the glare of subterranean regions, in place of the more professional calcium light.

Popularity of Dialogue form

This dialogue form was a favorite medium of the seventeenth century. In 1671 Thomas Sherman issued a tract called "Youth's Tragedy, drawn up by way of Dialogue between Youth, the Devil, Wisdom, Time, Death, the Soul, and the Nuncius", which was many times reprinted. So too, an anonymous poem entitled "An Excellent Example to all young Men, being a Dialogue betwixt Youth and Conscience and Satan" was issued in London in 1684. Still a third, called "The Youth's Looking Glass, being a divine Dialogue between a young Man, Satan, and our Saviour Jesus Christ", was printed without a date.

Authorship of Dialogue

None of these were the same as the Dialogue used in the Primer, and as no printing of it can be found pre-dating its appearance in that publication, it seems probable that it was composed by the man whom Dunton described as “the neat and poetical Ben Harris”. It is proper to note that unlike the portions already described it was not always included in the New England Primer, but as it is contained in the Bradford fragment, and in Harris’ “New English Tutor”, as well as in nine editions of the Primer printed in the eighteenth century, it has seemed best to treat it as one of the true pieces that went to mark the little book.

SUCH were the main contents of the Primer, but many smaller pieces, in which far greater variation was shown, were used by the printers to fill in between the more important portions, and to pad out at the end so as to complete the last signature. Few of these minor pieces can be positively identified, but as they go to make a history of the book, and as their chronology is of some value in settling the approximate decade of imperfect copies of the Primer, they deserve some attention.¹

In the second edition of the Primer, as the advertisement states, the Prayer of Edward VI, taken from Foxe’s “Book of Martyrs” was given, and this prayer appears in the “New English Tutor”, but no Primer extant contains it.

The New English Tutor, The Protestant Tutors of 1715, and 1716, and the New England Primer of 1727 contain the ten commandments, the “Names and Orders of the Books of the Old and New Testament” and “Numeral Letters and Figures, which may serve for the ready finding of any Chapter and Verse in the Bible". None of these were included in the later eighteenth century editions.

Text of edition of 1737

In the edition of 1737 a longish "Verses for Children" beginning "Though I am but a little one" appeared for the first time, and was included in many subsequent editions. This edition also gave a part of the "Duty of Children towards their Parents" which had been given in the "New English Tutor". The only other edition with this was one printed in London in 1781. Most remarkable of all in this edition was its printing of the lines :

*" Now I lay me down to sleep
I pray the Lord my soul to keep
If I should die before I wake
I pray the Lord my soul to take."*

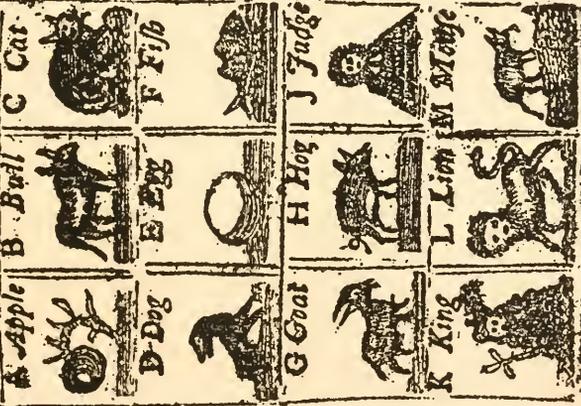

The author of these famous lines is unknown, and this is their first appearance in print, so far as can be discovered. They were included in almost every subsequent edition of the Primer.

*Text of the Evangelized
Editions*

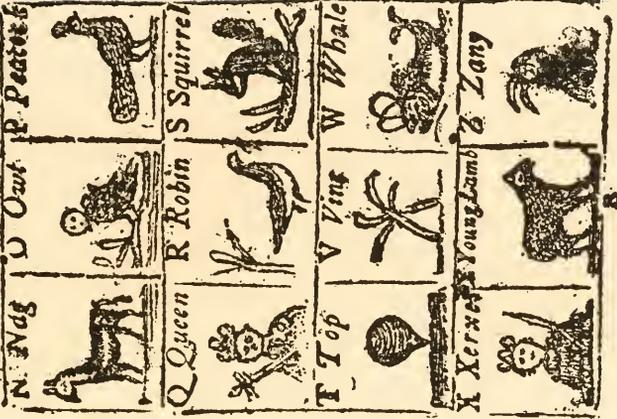

With the evangelization of the Primer between 1740 and 1760, besides the change in the rhymed alphabet other material alterations were introduced. In the earliest edition extant so revised the chief variations are the introduction of Watts' Divine Song for Children, his Cradle Hymn, and his Morning and Evening Prayers, Rev. Nathaniel Clap's "Advice to his Children," "Agurs Prayer," (which had appeared in the "New English Tutor") and "Some Proper Names of Men and Women." All these additions proved fairly popular, though the parts by Watts were the most so, and they formed the text of most editions of the Primer issued between 1762 and 1790. A minor addition was the insertion of a short set of questions, beginning "Who was the first Man", and all to be answered from the Bible. This was lengthened or shortened at the will of each printer, and in the Salem edition of 1784 the printer so far departed from sacred text, as to ask "Who saved America" and "Who betrayed America," the answers being "George Washington" and "Benedict Arnold."

About 1790 a very marked change was made by printers taking some mundane rhymes from an English publication entitled the "Royal Primer", describing various animals, with pictures of them. From this source were also taken a "Description of a Good Boy," a "Description of a Bad Boy," and poems on "The Good Girl" and "The Naughty Girl." Their insertion marked the beginning of the end, for no longer salvation was promised to the good, and unending fire to the bad, but "pert Miss Prat-a-pace" was to have none of the "Oranges, Apples, Cakes, or Nuts" promised to "pretty Miss Prudence," and the naughty urchin was only threatened with beggary while the good boy was promised "credit and reputation." Worst of all was the insertion of a short poem which should have made the true Puritan turn in his grave, for instead of teaching that letters were to be learned, that the Bible might be read, and that the figures were to be acquired for the purpose of finding chapter and verse in that work, it said :

*Text of the Popularized
Primers*

*" He who ne'er learns his A. B. C.
Forever will a blockhead be.
But he who learns his letters fair
Shall have a coach to take the air."*

The change, nevertheless proved popular, alas, and quite a number of editions between 1790 and 1800 contain more or less of these worldly additions.

*Unvaryingness of English
Editions*

Of these successive variations in the American primer, British editions took no heed, and they constitute a class by themselves. Although Harris' issue of the Primer in Old England contained Cotton's "Milk for Babes," later English editions did not include it. But aside from the standard contents of the Primer, there were added "The History of the Creation," a poetical "Advice to Children," a "Collection of the best English Proverbs," and a number of shorter pieces.

The "Adornment" with Cuts

NO account of the Primer would be complete without some notice of the illustrations, which alone of all its contents bid for popular favor from the children.

*The English
King*

In the Protestant Tutor as printed by Harris in 1716, is a frontispiece type-metal cut of George I. and from the fact that the New English Tutor and the 1727 edition of the Primer both lack the preliminary leaf of the first signature it is a safe assumption that these two books each began with a portrait of the Royal personage reigning at the time of their issue. The Primer of 1737 gives a very fairly executed portrait of George II. In 1762, though news of the death of this monarch had reached Boston, yet in an edition of the book printed there in that year, there either was too little time, or the printer was too economical, to prepare a new cut, so an additional stroke of the burin changed a II., into a

III., and thus a portrait of George III. was improvised, which in its striking likeness to his father clearly shows the wonderful influence of heredity.

The Primer of 1770 was more historically correct, giving a genuine though very crude portrait of George III. Again however, the printer was called upon, by the American Revolution, to change his frontispiece, and in 1776 the portrait of the Royal George was merely relabelled, and came forth as the republican "John Hancock," the likeness between these two, being it is needless to say, very extraordinary considering that they were representatives of such opposite parties. In the Boston edition of 1777 a correct portrait of Hancock was achieved, and in an edition printed in Hartford in the same year a portrait of Samuel Adams, another hero of the hour, was given. At the end of the revolution, the standard portrait became that of Washington, and the only exception to the use of his features, when any portrait was given in subsequent editions, is one of Isaac Watts printed in a Worcester edition issued about 1850.

The change in the rhymed alphabet cuts have already been described. One important fact however, is the use of some of the little pictures in a work written by Harris entitled "The Holy Bible In Verse." Harris advertised this book as early as 1701, and in an edition printed in 1717 all of the cuts are clearly taken from his edition of the New England Primer.¹

The print of John Rogers at the stake has also been mentioned. There is a picture of the scene in Foxe's "Book of Martyrs," but this departs from the standard of the Primer cuts, by not having wife and children present. The earliest cut found to include them is contained in the "New English Tutor," and the identical block used in that work is also used in Harris' edition of the "Protestant Tutor" of 1716. As fair samples of the style of prints, two eighteenth century cuts are given in the present work, taken from the editions of 1762 and 1770 respectively. Probably the most curious of all is that contained in the Albany edition of 1818, in which the guards are costumed in the local militia uniform of the day, with great plumes in their shakos, but scarcely less odd is that in the Lansingburg, 1810 edition, in which the executioner is given a continental cocked hat.

The Pope, or Man of Sin

In the "New English Tutor" a print is given of "The Pope or Man of Sin" which was originally beyond question a cut used to illustrate the signs of the zodiac in an almanac, for it is exactly like them with the exception of the addition of a tiara to the otherwise naked figure. To utilize the zodiacal lines and letters radiating from the body, Harris added a key or explanation which replaced Aries, Taurus, Cancer, Scorpion, etc., with Heresy, Disorder, Malice, Murder and Treachery, etc., and which called on the "Child" to "behold that Man of Sin, the Pope, worthy thy utmost Hatred." This print was reproduced in the Primer of 1737, but no key was added, so that the "Child" must have been not a little puzzled to know what the rays and letters meant.

The Devil's Picture Card

There was a worse lapse however, in this edition of 1737, for the last leaf prints an engraving which certainly was nothing less than the block of the queen in playing cards, for contemporary packs have just such queens. To find such a print in the godly New England Primer is perhaps the most curious fact yet known, and can only be accounted for by the probability that its purchasers were so ignorant of the appearance of the "Devil's picture cards" that they did not recognize its prototype.

The "New English Tutor" contained pictures of Death, Judgment, Heaven, and Hell, but these do not seem to have been repeated in the Primer. Kindred illustrations however, of "Adam and Eve", the "Nativity and the Passion", "Christ's Death", and "The Assension" were given in the Salem edition of 1784, and some of these prints were used in other issues printed in the decade 1790-1800. This Salem edition contained pictures of "a little boy and girl bestowing charity" and "a good Boy and Girl at their Books." More important still was its inclusion of certain prints of animals taken from the "Royal Primer," which, with the already described poems, was the first true bid for popularity the Primer had ever made. Some other worldly prints were included, among them two designed to teach the alphabet, no longer by Bible extracts, but by pictures of playthings, animals, etc.

Biblical and Worldly Illustrations

This secularizing was an attack by its friends from which the book never quite recovered, for the printers having once found how much more saleable such primers were, and parents having found how much more readily their children learned, both united in encouraging more popular school-books, and very quickly illustrated primers, which aimed to please rather than to torture, were multiplied. The New England Primer made a brave fight, but it was a hopeless battle. Slowly printer after printer abandoned the printing of editions of the little work, in favor of some more popular compilation. It was driven from the cities, then from the villages, and finally from the farm houses. Editions were constantly printed, but steadily it lost its place as a book of instruction. In the schools it was replaced by other and better books, and though an edition was printed as recently as 1886, it is to be questioned if an American child of to-day is being taught by the famous little manual.

the Primer*

*The Work of
the Primer*

IT is impossible to measure the work the Primer accomplished. If the Puritan exodus is viewed with the eyes of the Hon. William Stoughton, who asserted that “God sifted a whole nation that he might send choice grain into this wilderness,” is accepted there was little left for the Primer to do. This however is a public speaker’s view, and therefore probably approximated more to what would please his audience, than to the truth. Certainly the court records of early New England reveal a condition akin to all frontier settlements in lawlessness and immorality, and in proportion to population show a greater percentage of all crimes than would be found even in our large cities of to-day, bearing out the statement of the Rev. John White,—a leading Puritan—that a large part of the first settlers of New England were “a multitude of rude ungovernable persons, the very scum of the land.” It is related that a newly installed New England pastor said to a spinster parishioner “I hope, madam, you believe in total depravity,” and received the prompt response: “Oh, parson, what a fine doctrine it would be, if folks only lived up to it.” There was far more living up to total depravity in early New England than most people suspect, and when one reads the charges brought against them by their own ministers, it is not difficult to realize why the New England clergy dwelt so much on the terrors of hell ; one even becomes sympathetic with the Presbyterian clergyman who said with disgust that “the Universalists believe that all men will be saved, but we hope for better things.” Whatever the first years of New England may have been, however, the church and the school were at work, and what they did needs no other monument than the history of the last two hundred years. The New England Primer is dead, but it died on a victorious battle field, and its epitaph may well be that written of Noah Webster’s Spelling Book :

King GEORGE the Second

*The Work of
the Primer*

“It taught millions to read, and not one to sin.”

THE NEW ENGLAND
PRIMER

[1727]

NOTE

THE following is a facsimile of the earliest known edition of the New England Primer, taken from the unique copy in the Lenox Library. From its lacking one leaf in the first signature, it is presumed that a portrait of the reigning King of Great Britain preceded the title page. Part of pages 21-2, and all of pages 23-4 are lacking, but the probable text is restored in this reprint. The last leaf is also wanting, the text of which is supplied so far as possible.

Mr.

MR. John Rogers, Minister of the Gospel in London, was the first Martyr in Q. Mary's Reign, and was burnt at Smithfield, February the fourteenth, 1554. His Wife, with nine small Children, and one at at her Breast, following him to the Stake, with which sorrowful fight he was not in the least daunted, but with wonderful Patience died courageously for the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Some few Days before his Death, he writ the following Exhortation to his Children.

Give ear my Children to my words,
whom God hath dearly bought,
Lay up his Laws within your heart,
and print them in your thought,
I leave you here a little Book,
for you to look upon;
That you may see your Fathers face,
when he is dead and gone.
Who for the hope of heavenly things,
while he did here remain,
Gave over all his golden Years
to Prison and to Pain.
Where I among my Iron Bands,
inclosed in the dark,
C

Not many days before my Death.
I did compose this Work.
And for Example to your Youth,
to whom I wish all good ;
I send you here God's perfect Truth;
and seal it with my Blood
To you my Heirs of earthly Things;
which I do leave behind,
That you may read and understand,
and keep it in your mind.
That as you have been Heirs of that which once shall wear away,
You also may possess that part,
which never shall decay.
Keep always GOD before your eery
with all your whole intent ;
Commit no Sin in any wise,
Keep his Commandement.
Abhor that arrant Whore of Rome,
and all her Blasphemies ;
And drink not of her cursed Cup,
obey not her decrees.
Give honour to your Mother dear,
remember well her pain ;

And recompense her in her Age
with the like love again.
Be always ready for her help,
and let her not decay ;
Remember well your Father all .
that should have been your flay.
Give of your Portion to the Poor,
as Riches do arise ;
And from the needy naked Soul
turn not away your eyes.
For he that doth not hear the cry
of those that stand in need,
Shall cry himself and not be heard,
when he does hope to speed.
If GOD hath given you increase and blessed well your store,
Remember you are put in trust,
and should relieve the poor.
Beware of feul and filthy Lusts,
let such things have no place,
Keep clean your Vessels in the Lord,
that he may you embrace.
Ye are the Temples of the Lord,
for you are dearly bought .

And they that do defile the fame shall surely come to nought.
Be never Proud by any means,
build not thy house too high,
But always have before your eyes,
that you are born to die.
Defraud not him that hired is,
your labour to sustain;
And pay him still without delay,
his wages for his pain.
And as you would another Man against you should proceed,
Do you the same to them again,
if they do stand in need.
Impart your Portion to the Poor,
in Money and in Meat,
And send the feeble fainting Soul
of that which you do eat.
Ask Counsel always of the wise,
give ear unto the end,
And ne'r refuse the sweet rebuke
of him that is thy Friend.
Be always thankful to the Lord,
with Prayer and with Praise,

Begging of him to bless your work,
and to direct your ways.
Seek first I say the living GOD,
and always him adore ;
And then be sure that he will bless your basket and your store.
And I beseech Almighty GOD,
replenish you with Grace,
That I may meet you in the Heav'ns,
and see you face to face.
And tho' the Fire my Body burns, contrary to my kind ;
That I cannot enjoy your love,
according to my mind.
Yet I do hope that when the Heav'ns,
shall vanish like a scrowl,
I shall see you in perfect shape,
in Body and in Soul,
And that I may enjoy your love,
and you enjoy the Land
I do beseech the living LORD to hold you in his hand.
Though here my Body be adjudg'd
in flaming Fire to fry,

My Soul I trust will straight ascend,
to live with GOD on high.
What though this Carcase smart a while,
what though this Life decay,
My Soul I trust will be with GOD,
and live with him for aye.
I know I am a Sinner born,
from the Original;
And that I do deserve to die,
by my Fore-Fathers fall.
But by our Saviour's precious Blood,
which on the Cross was spilt,
Who freely offer'd up his Life,
to save our Souls from Guilt,
I hope Redemption I shall have,
and all that in him trust;
When I shall see him face to face,
and live among the Just.
Why then should I fear Death's grim look,
since Christ for me did die?
For King and Caesar, Rich and Poor,
the force of Death must trie.
When I am chained to the Stake,
and Faggots girt me round,

Then pray the Lord my Soul in Heav'n
may be with Glory crown'd.
Come welcome Death, the end of fears,
I am prepar'd to die ;
Those earthly Flames will send my Soul,
up to the Lord on high.
Farewel my Children to the World,
where you must yet remain ;
The Lord of Host be your defence
till we do meet again.
Farewel my true and loving Wife,
my Children and my Friends,
I hope in Heaven to see you all,
when all things have their ends
If you go on to serve the Lord,
as you have now begun,
You shall walk safely all your days,
until your life be done.
GOD grant you so to end your days,
as he shall think it best,
That I may meet you in the Heav'ns,
where I do hope to rest.

FACSIMILE
OF
THE NEW ENGLISH
TUTOR

[1702-1714?]

NOTE

IN Clavel's Catalogue (1680) a title is given of "The English Tutor; or, plain path-Way to the English Tongue. Printed by Ben Billingsley, and Sam. Crouch." The same list also records the "English Tutor, a spelling book," which possibly is the same work. The continuation of Clavel's list, under 1698, records the former work more fully as: "The English Tutor; or the plain Path-way to the English Tongue, being a most plain and familiar Method for the teaching of Children to spell and read exactly, with Examples of most Words from one to six Syllables, both in whole words and divided; the Rules how to spell them by way of Question and Answers; together with Hymns and Proverbs prepared and methodized for the Use of English Schools. The fourth Edition, corrected. Printed for B. Billingsley at the Printing Press under the Royal Exchange, and S. Crouch at the corner of Pope's head Alley in Cornhill." Of neither of these "Tutors" can a copy be traced.

As already noted in the introduction, John Dunton, writing in 1686, states that "Mr. Harris I think also Printed the Protestant Tutor, a Book not at all relish'd by the Popish Party, because it is the design of that little Book to bring up Children in an Aversion to Popery." No copy of this early edition is known.

The American Antiquarian Society has a very imperfect copy of "The Protestant T [utor] / for / Childr [en.] / The Doner there on v [. . .] / Health and Preserv [. . .] / the Gospel on Jesu [s C] hrist [. . .] / To which is Added Verses made by Mr. John/Rogers a Martyr in Queen Maries Reign. / [Quotation from I Kings 18. 21, five lines.] / Boston in New-England, Printed by Samuel/Green, And are to be Sold by John Griffin / in Boston 16[8]5." This fragment consists of only the Rogers' Verses, without a cut, and a part of an unknown catechism. How far it otherwise resembled the later editions of the "Protestant Tutor" cannot therefore be known, but the probabilities are that it was a pretty close reprint of the first edition of Harris's compilation.

Under the pseudonym of "A Lover of Learning," with a preface dated 1687 and signed "R. W.," "The English Tutor: Or, Compendious School-Master: Teaching the English-Tongue," was issued with the imprint of "London: Printed and Sold by Tho. Leigh and Dan. Midwinter at the Rose and Crown in St. Paul's Church-Yard. 1701." The first edition of this was styled "The Compendious School-Master," and was printed at London in 1688 by Samuel Lowndes. It contains the "Capital letters," etc., the syllabarium, very much lengthened, the Lord's Prayer and Creed, the ten commandments, and a number of prayers and graces. Otherwise it differs radically from the New England Primer.

Next in sequence follows the "New English Tutor," here reprinted, which was issued in Queen Anne's Reign (1702-14) if the poem in the rhymed alphabet is accepted as evidence. Though there is no imprint, it was obviously printed by Harris, or with his authority, for a comparison of the John Rogers print with that used in Harris's edition of the Protestant Tutor of 1716 (a reproduction of which forms the frontispiece of this volume) shows them to be from the same block.

In 1715 Norris issued an edition of the Protestant Tutor, and a year later Harris issued another. These are the earliest editions extant, and while they differ slightly in contents, and are quite distinct from the "New English Tutor", they both contain the alphabet and syllabarium, the Lord's Prayer and Creed, the Rogers verses and print, with certain other matter used as well in the New England Primer and its prototypes. Copies of the two editions are in the British Museum, and the title page of the Harris edition is reproduced in this volume.

In the Advocates' Library at Edinburgh there is a copy of "The English Tutor" printed at London in 1747, but the work bears no resemblance to either of Harris's publications, being merely a school book. It is noticed here, therefore, only to avoid possible confusion.

On Death

*View, my dear Child, what is before thine Eye,
 And know for certain thou art born to dye
 How soon thou know'st not, it may come before;
 Thou shalt enjoy one Minutes Pleasure more;
 When thou wilt leave this World and all behind:
 To be with Worms, in some Church, yard confin'd,
 And as from all thy friend sgrim death shall take thee
 So God will find thee when the trumpet shall be.*

On Judgment

When at the Throne of God our great Creator
 Thou shalt be judg'd for ev'ry misbehaviour, and as thou'rt found, so Sentence pass'd shall be
 By the great King of Kings & Eternity.
 Then sinful Creatures, for their wretched Pride, shall strive thro' vain despair in Rocks to hide,
 While sheep and goats do take their last farewell,
 Some fly to Heaven, and others drop to Hell.

On Heaven.

IN Heav'n above, where righteous Souls do sing
 Eternal Praises to their heav'nly King,
 There is no Fear, no Care, nor cause of strife,
 Nor Want nor sickness to deprive of Life.
 No anxious thoughts about a future state,
 But there they find it with a Joy complet.
 Teaching this Paths of Bliss whose ways are even,
 This and ten thousand times more blest is Heaven.

On Hell.

FAR from th' Almighty's Throne is fix'd a place
 Prepar'd of Old for all the damned Race,
 Where toads and snakes shall be their lasting meat,
 Whilst gnawing Conscience ebs' their Vitals eat.
 But oh, what's worse than all these pains shall be Excluded from all hopes of Liberty,
 Where in despair 'mongst Devils they will dwell,
 This and ten thousand times more worse is Hell.

Youth.

THose days which God to me does send
In Pleasure I resolve to spend.
Like as the Birds i'th' lovely Spring,
Sit' chirping on the Boughs and Sing,
Who straining forth their warbling notes
Do make sweet Musick in their throats:
So I relolve, in this my Prime,
In Sports and Plays to spend my time:
Sorrow and Grief I'll put away,
Such things agree not with my Day.
From clouds my morning shall be free,
And nought on Earth shall trouble me,
I will embrace each sweet delight
The Earth affords me Day and Night.
Though Parents grieve and me correct
Yet I their Counsel will reject.

Devil.

The Resolution which you take,
Sweet Youth, it doth me merry make,
If thou my Counsel wilt embrace,
And shun the ways of Truth and Grace;
And learn to lie, to curse and swear,
And be as Proud as any are,
And with thy Brothers will fall out,
And Sisters with vile Language flout;
Yea, fight and scratch, and also bite,
Then I in thee will take Delight.
If thou wilt but be rul'd by me,
An Artist thou shalt quickly be.
In all my Ways, which lovely are,
There's few with thee who shalt compare;
Thy Parents always disobey,
Don't mind at all what they do say:
And also pout and sullen be,
And thou shalt be a Child for me,
When others Read, be thou at Play,
Think not on God, don't sigh nor pray:
Nor

74 The New-English
Nor be thou such a silly Fool,
To mind thy Book, or go to School ;
But play the Truant, fear not, I
Will help thee straightway to a Lie,
Which will excuse thee for the same,
From being whipt, and from all blame,
Come, bow to me, uphold my Crown,
And I'll thee raise to high Renown.

Youth.

These Motions I will cleave unto,
And let all other Counsel go.
My Heart against my Parents now
Shall hardned be : I will not bow,
No, nor submit at all to them,
But all good Counsel will contemn,
And what I list, to do will I,
And stubborn be continually.

Christ.

Wilt thou, O Youth, make such a choice,
And thus obey the Devil's Voice ?
Curst sinful Ways wilt thou embrace,
And

And hate my Ways of Fear and Grace,
Wilt thou to me a Rebel prove,
And from thy Parents quite remove Thy Heart also ? Then thou wilt see
What will e're long become of thee !
Come think on God who did thee make
And at his Presence dread and quake.
Remember him now in thy Youth,
And let thy Soul take hold of Truth.
The Devil and his Ways defy,
Believe him not, he doth but lie .
His ways seem sweet, but Youth beware,
He for thy Soul hath laid a Snare :
His sweet will into soure turn,
If in these Ways thou still wilt run ;
He will thee into pieces tare,
Like Lions which most hungry are.
Grant me thy Heart, thy Folly leave,
And from the Lion I'll thee save ;
And thou shalt have sweet Joy from me:
Which will last to Eternity.

Youth

Youth,

My Heart shall chear me in my youth,
 I'll have my Frolicks in good truth
 Whate'er seems lovely in mine Eye,
 My self of it I can't deny.
 In mine own Ways I still will walk,
 And take delight among young Folk,
 Who spend their days in Joy and Mirth,
 Nothing like that I'm sure on Earth.
 Thy Ways, O Christ, are not for me,
 They with my Age do not agree.
 If I unto thy Ways should cleave,
 No more good days then shall I have.

Christ.

Wouldst thou live long and good days see,
 Refrain from all Iniquity.
 True Good alone from me doth flow,
 It can't be had in things below.
 Are not my Ways, O Youth, for thee?
 Then thou shalt never happy be;
 Nor ever shall thy Soul obtain
 True good, whilst here it doth remain.

Youth.

To thee, O Christ, I'll not adhere,
What thou speak'st of doth not appear
Lovely to me, I cannot find
Tis good to set or place my mind
On Ways from whence my Sorrows spring,
And to the Flesh such Crosses bring.
Don't trouble me, I must fulfil
My fleshly Mind, and have my Will,

Christ.

Unto thy self then I'll thee leave,
That Satan may thee wholly have.
Thy Heart in Sin shall hardned be,
And blinded in Iniquity.
And then in Ire. I'll cut thee down,
Like as the Grass and Flowers mown.
And to thy Woe thou shalt espy
Childhood and Youth is Vanity :
For all such things I'll make thee know
To Judgment thou shalt come also.

When thou thy sinful Race hast run.

Lest God do thee to pieces rend.

Youth.

Amazed, Lord, I now begin,
O help me, I and I'll leave my Sin:
I tremble, and do greatly Fear,
To think upon what I do hear.
Lord! I Religious now will be,
And I'll from Satan turn to thee.

Devil.

Nay, foolish Lad, don't change thy mind,
Unto such Thoughts be not inclin'd:
Come cheer thy heart, rouse up, be glad,
There is no Hell. Why art so sad?
Eat, drink, be merry with thy Friend,
For when thou dy'st, that's thy last end.

Such thoughts as these I can't receive.

Yea, and a Hell of Misery:
I can't deny, 'tis a clear Case;
That Heaven is a lovely place,
And easie 'tis for to come there,
Therefore take thou no farther Care.
All human Laws do thou observe,
And from old Customs never swerve;
Do not oppose what great Men say,
And thou shalt never go astray.
Thou may'st be drunk, & swear & curse,
And Sinners like thee ne'er the worse,
At any time thou may'st repent,

 Lest suddenly in Hell you fall.
 Unless that you converted be,
 God's Kingdom you shall never see.

Youth.

Lord, I am now at a great stand,
 If I should yield at thy Command,
 My Conscience will me much deride,
 And never more will me abide.

 Thou canst at last great Mercy show :

And all thy Sports shall have an end.*

Advice

Advice to Children.

CHildren, consider that you may Dye, as Young as you are; you may see Graves in the Field shorter than the smallest of you all. Consider, that you may Perish, as young as you are there are small Chips, as well as great Logs, in the Fire of Hell. Consider, that it is wonderful pleasing to the Lord Jesus Christ, for such as you are to seek unto him; he hath said, They that seek me early shall find me: Well then, Children, hearken unto the good Instructions of your Parents. If you would keep out of untimely Misery, you must honour them; and when they bid you to study your Catechism, and to order your Conversation aright, be not like the Children of Eli, of whom 'tis said, They hearkned

*ned not unto the Voice of their Father

Be Counsell'd, Children, not only to Learn well, but to Live well.

Be Counsell'd to shun Sin, especially shun the Sin of evil Speaking. A Child that shall call evil Names, or use cursed Oaths, or utter filthy Words, is in a worse Condition than one of the Children in the Gospel, possels'd by the Devil.

Shun the Sin of Sabbath-breaking.
The Devil is the Play-Mate of the Child that will Play on the Sabbath-Day.

Shun the Sin of Lying. The Child that will tell a Lye, must one Day toar in Hell, O for a Drop of Water to cool

Company.

If you see a prophane Child be not intimate with that Child: of Belial: You had as good fall into the Power of the Bears, which devoured the Children that mocked the Minister of God, as fall into the Hands of bad Companions.

Be also Counsell'd to Pray much: When Children were brought unto Jesus Christ, he blessed them: How much more will he bless you if you go your self unto him?

O go alone every Day, and Pray hard: Pray for a new Heart, for the Pardon of your Sins, and for an Interest in Jesus Christ. Let this Thought encourage you: There are more Children in Heaven than of any other Age.

JOHN ROGERS'S
EXHORTATION

THE history of this poem has already been given in the introduction (pages 32-37) and therefore need not be retold here. Of the edition of 1559, from which the following title-page and Exhortation are excerpted, but two copies are known, one being in the Huth Library and the other in Bodleian. In Ritson's Bibliographica Poetica (page 334) it is stated "This piece, commonly call'd 'John Rogerses primmer,' was printed, with other things, under the title of 'An exhortation of Mathewe Rogers vnto his children,' 1559, 8vo (Herbert, 1600); and enter'd to John Arnold, 13th October 1577. Bale, among the English works of Johannes Rogers, enumerates 'Ad filios ex carcere, Lib. 1.' A copy, in the library of Emanuel-college, bears the name of Thomas Mathew, which was assumed by Rogers in his translation of the bible; and hence, it may be, he obtain'd the name of Mathew Rogers, unless it were, more likely, a mistake of M. (i. e. master) Rogers. He, too, was a Martyr in the same year with Smith, to whom Foxe, a diligent collector, and good authority, ascribes the poem in question.

There was a second edition of the tract, leave to print which was granted to John Arnold, in 1577, and recorded on the Stationer's Register in the words "Licensed vnto him a litle booke Conteyninge theis matters viz the complainte of veritye made by John Bradforde, An exhorteacon of Mathewe Rogers to his Children" etc. No copy of this edition is known.

The poem is not in the three first editions of Foxe's Actes and Monuments—the true title of the work popularly known as the Book of Martyrs—and the earliest edition in which the editor has found it is in the seventh (London: 1632) where it is printed in volume 111, page 405, as "The exhortation of Robert Smith unto his children, commonly set out in the name of Master Rogers." An interesting change in this text is the addition of marginal references to various parts of the scriptures.

It was from Foxe apparently that Harris took it for insertion in the Protestant Tutor, the New England Primer and the New English Tutor. No edition of any one of those books is known which does not contain the poem, and the editor has seen but two editions of the New England Primer which does not contain also a cut of the burning. As already stated the illustration in the Book of Martyrs differs radically from those in the Primers, in omitting the "wife with nine small children, and one at her Breast" from the scene. It is to be noted, too, that the text in the New England Primer is materially abridged from the original.

MR. JOHN ROGERS, Minister of the Gospel in London, was the first Martyr in Queen Mary's Reign and was burnt at Smithfield, February 18th. 1555. His Wife with nine small Children, and one at her Breast following him to the Stake: with which sorrowful Sight he was not in the least daunted, but with wonderful Patience died courageously for the Gospel of JESUS CHRIST.

COTTON MATHER'S VIEWS ON CATECHISING

[1708]

NOTE

THE following article forms the preface to Cotton Mather's "Man of God Furnished," (already mentioned in the introduction, page 43) which consisted of abridgements of Cotton's "Spiritual Milk for Babes" and of the Assembly's "Shorter Catechism." Concerning this work Mather in his advertisement wrote: "Be assured, Reader, the only Reason, why it has been thought Advisable, a little to Shorten those passages in, THE MILK FOR BABES, which refer to the Different Ministry of the Law and of the Gospel, and to the, Constitution of the particular Church-State, is this. We do by long experience find, that those Questions have proved a great Encumbrance to our Babes, in their learning of the Catechism: And the Excellent Author himself had not been so large upon them, if he had not had an Eye, to certain Special Exercises upon the minds of the faithful AT THAT TIME, in the land. The Present Time, it may be, does not call for so Large a Proportion of those Questions, in such a very brief System of the Christian Religion, which our Babes are to be fed withal. And yet that we may pay all possible Deference to that incomparable Catechism, there is care taken, summarily to give under Two Questions, all that was given under Nine before: Not one Yot or Tittle of the Doctrine, or one drop of the Milk, is really taken away. That Golden Composure, THE ASSEMBLIES CATECHISM (no more than any other Humane composure), suffers no Disparagement, by being supposed capable of an Abridgment. Examine it, Reader whether what was contained in One Hundred and Seven Questions, be not now really contracted and contrived into Thirty Two. If it be so, the Littleness of the Task, in getting it by heart, must needs be no Little Encouragement unto weaker Capacities, to undertake it. And if our pious Householders purpose to lodge the rest which our WAY OF TRUTH has here prepared for them, or, at least, the Scriptural part of it, in the Memories of their Children and Servants, they will not wonder at it, that we make the First Burdens that we lay upon them, as easy as ever we can."

MATHER ON CATECHISING

An ADDRESS to, (them that should be) The INSTRUCTORS of the Ignorant :

THAT the Principles of the Christian Religion should be Be- times instilled into those, who are under our influences, there is all the Reason imaginable ; there are none but what confess it infinitely Reasonable. That the way of instilling the Christian Religion, by Catechising, or a conference carried on with Question and Answer, is very Necessary, and highly agreeable to awaken the At- tention, and Enlighten the Vnderstanding of the Catechumens ; this also is the confession of all, who have considered, but how Mankind is to be dealt withal.

Value of Cate-
chising

The Exhortations, to Set up & keep up, that admirable work of CATECHISING, in the Church of God, have been with a vast Variety of Argument and Affection Repeted (2) since the Great Austin wrote his Book, De Catechizandis Rudibus. With One Voice they have concurred unto the Declaration of Clemens, the famous Cate- chist in the Church of Alexandria ; Without Catechising we shall soon be without Christianity. But why should they need any Repetition, unto those who Believe, that we are all Hastening unto a Future
State, and that the Children of Men must be Miserable in the Future
State, if here coming to their Adult State, they do not Know Him, whom to Know is Life Eternal.

Catechising
the mainstay of Christianity

Great Number of Catechisms

The very many Sorts of Catechisms, which have been Published (the Catalogue whereof would arise to some Hundreds), and the huge Numbers of all Sorts (whereof some have arisen to very many Hundreds of Thousands) have practically Expressed the sense of the Christian World; concerning the Needfulness and Usefulness of Catechising.

Extract from Gallenius

What was done this way by the Christians, in the Primitive Times, not we, but a Learned Papist shall Report unto you; [and his Witness is true!] Gallenius tells us, The Catechumens were then so Instructed, every one of them was, Majori rerum Christianarum Luce Peritiaque Præditus, quamin nostris (non dicam Vulgaribus Christianis, sed et quod pudendum est,) Sacerdotibus multis deprehendimus. Many Priests of the Later Ages, were not so well skill'd in Christianity.

Results of Catechism to Church of Rome

All that have Read the History of the Se- (3) paration of the Faithful, from the Romish Babylon, have been somewhat informed of the mighty Consequence, whereof Catechising has been unto the Reformation. Celebrated is the History of the Unsuccessful Attempts which the Papist Missionaries made upon the Vaudois; the Children were so well Catechised, it seems, the Seducers could have no Success upon them. And the Church of Rome has taken the Alarum; the Romanists also are become in their way indefatigable Catechisers. The Jesuites especially, because they count themselves the greatest Catechisers, boast themselves the greatest Conservators of their Christianity. Yea, there is now scarce any Sect, of them who never cease to Pervert the Right ways of the Lord, but they are now got into this Way; even those who decry all Forms, yet cannot keep out of This: 'tis by Incessant Catechising, that they propose to attain their Ends. And Judaism itself may raise the Emulation of Christianity. For Buxtorf tells us, The Jews have to this Day some Footsteps of the ancient Discipline and Catechising in their Families: For they so Catechise their Children, that their skill in Judaism at Seventeen, Exceeds the Knowledge that many of us have in Christianity at Seventy. Thus has this Mode of Instructing brought mankind into a great Opinion of it!

The Renowned Synod of Dort, after a most mature Deliberation, sent forth an Advice (4) well worthy of such an Assembly; De Accuratiore Juniorum atque Adulorum Catechizative. And they recommended a Threefold Catechizing; A Domestick by Parents; A Scholaſtick by Tutors; and, an Eccleſiaſtickal by Paſtors or Elders. Testimony of Synod of Dort

In the same Order of Adreſs, we will now importunately call upon thoſe, whoſe concern it is, to Catechiſe our Young People, and Feed the Lambs, in the Churches of the Lord.

And, firſt, if it be the concern of any under Heaven, it cannot but be Yours, O PARENTS, to Catechiſe your Children, in the Principles of the Doctrine of Chriſt. It is to YOU, firſt, that the Council of Wiſdom is directed; Prov. 22 4. Train up, (or Catechize) a Child, in the way he ſhould go: 'Tis to be done, even (as 'tis by ſome rend'red,) In the very Entrance of his way. The Things of God, and His Religion, are thoſe whereof You have received this Commandment from Heaven; Deut. 6 7. Theſe things, Thou ſhalt teach them diligently unto thy Children, and thou ſhalt talk of them when thou ſitteſt in thine Houſe. Without Catechizing your Children, you never can yield Obedience to the Holy Commandment: Eph. 6. 4. Bring up your Children, in the Nurture and Admonition of the Lord. You ſee the Word of a King: we call upon you in the Name of that Great King whoſe Name is Dreadful: Let there be ſuch Power in it, as to Awe you to do the Things that pleaſe Him. Address to Parents

Indeed You do very notably Serve yourſelves, when you Teach your Children. Your Well Catechified Children, will be your Comfort, your Honour. Happy the Man that has his Quiver full of them! It may be, God will make them Sweet Bleſſings to you, if you Teach them to be true Servants to Him. Your Children will certainly be the more Tractable, the more Orderly; you will keep up Your Authority over them the better, for your Catechizing of them. The well-catechised Child

Rewards to Parents

If God Smile on your Serious Endeavours, with what Joy will you See your Children walking in the Truth! You will Rejoyce greatly. Your Neighbourhood will also have the Joyful Advantage of it. All the Neighbours that have any Good in them, or Love to Good, will Bless God, and Bless You, for the Good, which Your well-instructed Children do in the World. And Religion will thus, by your means, be Propagated unto the Next Generation. The Law of Israel, being thus Made known to your Children, the Generation to come, will reap the Harvest of your Excellent Endeavours; Yea, the Children that are to be Born, will arise, and declare it unto their Children; and they will Set their Hope in God, & keep His Commandments. Or, should the Children miscarry [which God forbid!] after you have Endeavoured their best Education in Catechising of them, You will still have this Peace of Conscience, I did my Duty! But if (6) the Duty which you owe unto the Children, that are committed unto you by God, be left Undone, it must needs leave such a Sting upon the Conscience, as upon the Death of these Poor Children, or your own, will be a thousand times more Bitter than Death. By Catechizing your Children you Enrich their Minds, with incomparable Treasures: You lay a Foundation to render them Temples of God, wherewith no Artificial Structures, tho' never so stately, are to be compared. But if they are kept Ignorant of the Things of their Peace, this Ignorance will be, but the Mother of Destruction unto them. You know the word of God: Prov. 19, 2. That the Soul be without Knowledge it is not Good. Your Children will never be full of Goodness, if they be not fill'd with Knowledge. If the Image of God be Renewed upon them, the first Lineaments of it, will be in Knowledge. Without That, they will Retain the Image of Satan on them; they will Stumble along in the dark Empire of Satan, the Ruler of the Darknes of this World; they will be a Morfel for Satan at the last: Brought forth for the Murderer!

The Souls of your Children make a Cry in your Ears, O Parents; a cry enough to break an Heart of Adamant. They are Born Children of Wrath; and when they grow up, you have no way to Save them from the dreadful Wrath of God, if you do not Catechise them in the Way of Salvation. They cry to you; (7) O our dear Parents; Acquaint us with the Great God, and His Glorious Christ that so Good may come unto us! Let us not go from your Tender Knees, down to the Place of Dragons. Oh! Not Parents, but Ostriches: Not Parents but Prodigies! What, but more cruel than the Sea-Monsters are the Parents, who will not be moved by such Thoughts as these, to Draw out the Breasts of the Catechism, unto their Young Ones! One would think, Parents, Your own Bowels, if you have not Monstrously lost them, would Suggest enough to persuade you unto the Pleasant Labours of the Catechism.

You cannot be Children of God your selves, if you are not Sollicitous, that your Children should become the Servants of God: If you can bear to see them Traitors to God, and Vassals of the Devil. It is the Character of every Pious Parent in the World; Gen. 18.19. I Know him, that he will command his Children, and Household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord.

Both of the Parents are under Obligations to this Work of God. Even the MOTHERS must not reckon themselves Excused; no, but as in some regard, their Opportunities to Catechise the Children are Singular, so are their Obligations. It was well for Solomon, that he had his Mother Bathsheba; It was well for (8) Timothy, that he had his Mother Eunice, to Catechise him. Oh ye Handmaids of the Lord; The Law of Christ, should be so Set home upon your Children, that it may be said unto them, Forfake not the Law of thy Mother! Your Children may say, In Sin did my Mother conceive me. Why should they not also have cause to say, My Mother did what she could, that I might be Saved out of my Sin; and come to the Knowledge of my Saviour! You have the Children very much with you; You Feed them; you Dress them; They fly to your Wing; you may Catechise them every day; you may be continually dropping something of the Catechism upon them: Some Honey out of the Rock!

Masters and Servants

And the Masters must also be Put in mind, that the Servants in the Family are their Children. The Servants also must be Catechised; give them some Liesure to Learn the Catechism; Some Reward, when they have duely Learnt it. Let them on this Account have cause Eternally to acknowledge the Compafsion of God unto them, in bringing them to Live in a Family, where fuch care was taken of them.

The Primitive
Christians

It may be, the Advice will find out, and fall on, Some of the Chosen of God, if our Discourse proceed unto fo much Particularity, as to fay; That the Servants in the House, may come to do the part of Parents unto the Children in their Assistences unto this glorious Work (19) of the Lord. Even the Handmaids in our Families, who tend upon the Children, how much may they do, in Teaching them their Catechism? Among the Primitive Christians, there are some, who tho' they had no Need of it, yet bound themselves to be Servants in Pagan Families here and there, on purpose, for nothing else but that they might convey the Instruction of Christianity into those Families, and obtain their Conversion to Christianity by Instructing them. God prospered them Wonderfully! We do not Propound the Whole Action to be imitated. But the Devout, flaming, Heroick Zeal of the Action may in the Imitation, operate thus far. If Servants would once come to take Delight in it, they might every day, keep Teaching the Children the Truths of Religion, and marvelously Adorn the Doctrine of God their Saviour. Examples of such a thing have sometimes occur'd among us: Exemplary Servants: worthy to be Esteemed Children!

The Schoolmaster should be a Catechist

We bespeak, All Hands to the Work. It must be the Work of the SCHOOL too. The School-master, the School-mistress, must be a Catechist. In some Reformed Places, the Magistrate countenances none to keep a School, but what appears with a Testimonial, of their Ability, and their Disposition (10) particularly, [Aptitudinis ad munus illud, imprimis Puerorum Catechizationem] for the Work of Religious Catechising. We read, The Little ones have their Angels. To keep a School, is a most heavy, grievous, Wearisome Work; It is hardly ever sufficiently Recompenced. But then, to Catechise the Children, and bring them to Know the Holy Scriptures, this is a Noble Work; we had almost call'd it A Work for Angels. Be not Weary of this Welldoing. Certainly, 'Tis a Nobler Work, to make the Little Ones know their Saviour, than to know their Letters. The Lefsons of Jefus are Nobler things than the Lessons of Cato. A Sanctifying Transformation of their Souls, were a Nobler Thing, than merely to contrue Ovids Metamorphosis. Every Week, Let the School have one or two Catechetical Exercises. And when you set your Scholars, to Write Copies, or make Latin, why may not the Catechism afford Materials for them? This would make the Golden Nails to stick the Faster in their Minds. By such Methods you may be so Serviceable to them in their Highest Interests, as to make a Real Problem of that (11) which in the Schools they sometimes Themmatize upon; Whether Children may not be as much Endebted unto their TUTORS, as unto their Parents?

Well; But how shall this Work be Prudently managed? We shall doubtless all agree, That it should be Pray'rfully managed. When a more Solemn Catechising is to be prosecuted, it is not unfuitable, to Look up unto God, at the Beginning, with a Short Supplication of that Importance; Lord, Open our Eyes, that we may behold the wondrous things in thy Law; and that we may be made Wise unto Salvation. And it is very suitable, that the Conclusion should be a more Expresive & Extended Supplication; yea, and that the Catechism should be turn'd into Supplication.

But it is a point of Extreme Importance in a Catechising, that the Understandings of the Children, should have the Truths of the Gospel in them, as well as their Memories.

A Prayer to precede Catechising

Teachers, You will do well to Try, and Help their Understandings, by breaking every Answer of the Catechism, into Little Parcels, into Lesser Questions, to which (12) a pertinent Word or two of theirs might be all Their Answer.

Method of Catechising

For Instance. When the Children have said ; God has made me, He keeps me, and can Save me. Ask them ; What ? Is there then a God, who made all things ?

Did you make yourself ?

Who then made you ?

Can you keep yourself ?

Should you not quickly fall into all Miseries, if God did not keep you ?

Who is it that has Fed you, and Cloath'd you, and help'd you, and bestow'd upon you all the Good things that you have Enjoy'd all this while ?

Can you Save yourself, out of the Miserable condition, into which you are fallen ?

Unto whom are you to Look for Salvation ?

When the Children have said ; The Chief End of Man, is to glorify God, and Enjoy Him forever. Ask them ; What ? Then is there something that every man should propound to himself as his chief End ?

Is it the chief End of man to seek himself, or to make himself great ?

Or, to Enjoy the Riches or Pleasures of this World ? (13)

Or, must we propound it, as our chief End, to Glorify God, and Enjoy Him forever ?

And, if we do actively set our selves to Glorify God, in our Obedience to Him, shall we Enjoy Him for ever ?

Saying the Catechism by rote

Alas, we find, Many who can Say their Catechisms, do know very Little of what they Say. But this way of coming at their Understandings will bring them into Goshen immediately ; into a Marvelous Light.

. Yea, But you should contrive that their Hearts and Lives may be shaped by the truths thus got into their Understandings. They should not only know, That God has made them, and does keep them, and can save them, They should be ask'd;

Whether they will serve the God that Made them?

Whether they Give Thanks to God for Keeping them?

Whether they Pray to God, that He would Save them?

They should not only know, That the chief End of Man is to Glorify God, and Enjoy Him for ever; they should be ask'd; (14)

Multiply the Questions

Whether they fix upon this, as Their chief End?

Whether they desire the Help of God, that they may Glorify Him?

Whether they had rather Enjoy God, than have all the Enjoyments in this World?

When the Catechism tells them the Condition whereunto Sin has brought them, Let them tell you, what they Think of this condition: whether it be not a very Sad Condition: And, whether they would not gladly be Delivered from it.

When the Catechism tells them Who the Redeemer is, and what He does for sinful men; Let Them tell you, what they would have Him do for Them.

When the Catechism tells them, the Good things, that must be found in, and done by, the People of God; Let Them tell you, Whether they beg of God that they may attain to Such things as these.

Who can tell, but while the Blessed echo's of Truth, are in this Catechising, thus passing between You and Them, their Young Hearts may Burn within them, and by a verticordious Efficacy from Heaven be Drawn unto the Lord, and even Surpris'd into such a Consent (15) unto the Gospel, as may prove a Real, and a Lasting Work of Regeneration upon them? Oh! that the Christian World, were fill'd with the Experiments!

Possible results

And yet none of all this Diligence in Other Teachers, about, One of the Best of Works, need Supersede your Diligent Application unto

Address to Pastors

it, O Ye PASTORS of the Flocks: your Pastoral care about it, will be unspeakably Pleasing unto the Lord, O Ye MINISTERS of His, who would Study to do His Pleasure.

Sirs, You cannot but upon sad experience find, That your Sermons, tho' never so well-composed Meat-Offerings for the House of your God, will be very much lost, upon an Uncatechised People: Or, as our Flavel Expresses it; All your Excellent Sermons will be dashed to pieces on the Rock of your Peoples Ignorance. And that your Unattentive Hearers [if they may sometimes be called Hearers!] take not near so much Notice of what you Speak in the Pulpit, as they would of what you might Speak unto them, in the more Approaching and Familiar way of Catechising. There never was in this World, a Minister of the Gospel, who (16) was a Great Catechizer, and Repented of it. There have been Thousands, who have used very Great Labours in Catechising, and have given very Great Praises unto God, for the Successes that have attended them. Nor have the Consolations of a Walk with God, and the Inclinations of a Walk in the Spirit, more accompanied them, in any part of their Ministry, than when they have been Going about from House to House, to Do this Good, among their People.

Catechising
an honorable exercise

The most Honourable Man of God cannot reckon it, any Prostitution of his Character in the Evangelical Ministry, to stoop unto this Way of Teaching; but it would bring him the Aptest Occasion imaginable, to do the part of a Wife winner of Souls, upon those who are of all the most likely to be Won upon. It is the Opinion, both of Chebnitz, and of Zanchy; That the Exercise, which our Saviour in His Youth, honoured with His Presence was, A Catechistical Exercise. A most Honourable Exercise! Yea, some Eminent Ministers, in their Emerited Old Age, when other Services of the Evangelical Ministry in their (17) Congregations have been too hard for them, have [like the famous Old Gerson,] wholly given themselves up to the work of Catechising: and have not been of the Apprehen-tion which that brave Chancellour of Paris, in his Treatise, De Pueris ad Christum trabendis, does animadvert upon: Adeo jam indignum videtur apud multos, Si quis ex Theologis, out famatus in Litteris vel Ecclesiastica Dignitate Præditus, ad hoc opus se inclinaverit.

Nor can the most Lively vigour of Youth, be better Employ'd, than in calling upon the Children, in our Flocks, to come, and Harken unto us, while we Teach them the Fear of the Lord. In a Personal Instruction wisely carried on, we shall put into the very Mouths of our Children, the Food, which we only set on the Table before them, in our more Publick Dispensations. And shall we thus give to each in the whole Household, their Meat in due Season? Blessed is that Servant, whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find So Doing.

SAYING THE CATE-CHISM

BY
REV. DORUS CLARKE

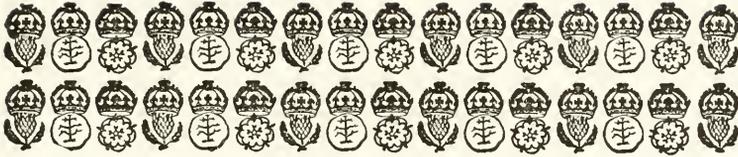

[1878]

NOTE

THIS is extracted from an address on the town of Westhampton, Massachusetts, delivered before the New England Historic Genealogical Society on Dec. 4, 1878, and printed in Barnard's Journal of Education in 1880.

SAYING THE CATECHISM

I HOLD in my hand a very small book, which perhaps some of you, in all your researches through the large libraries in this country and in Europe, have never discovered. I know not who compiled it, but it has done more to form the New England character than any book except the Bible. Allow me, then, to introduce you to the “New England Primer.” Here we have, among many other things, this important information :

*The New England
Primer*

*“ In Adams’s fall
We sinned all.”*

*“ The cat doth play,
And after slay.”*

*“ The dog doth bite
The thief at night.”*

and so on. Here is also a picture of John Rogers, burning at the stake in Smithfield, in 1554, and “his wife and nine small children, and one at the breast,” looking on. Does that mean that he had nine children or ten? I have stumbled, then, upon two unsettled historical questions : one is, Who compiled the New England Primer? and the other is, How many children did John Rogers have? We are in the habit of settling such questions here, but we have not time to settle those now.

The Catechism

The "Primer" which was used in Westhampton was a square book. It was not in this oblong, modern form. This book, therefore, does not look to me quite orthodox outside; but I have no doubt it is orthodox inside, for it contains the Catechism. The Catechism, as we studied and recited it, was divided into three parts. The first part comprehended all between, "What is the chief end of man?" and "the First Commandment." The second embraced all the "Commandments," together with "What is required?" and "What is forbidden?" in them all, and "The reasons annexed for observing them." The third included all from the question, "Is any man able perfectly to keep the commandments of God?" to the end. The Catechism was required, by the public sentiment of the town, to be perfectly committed to memory, and recited in the meeting house by all the children and youth between the ages of eight and fifteen. These public recitations were held on three different Sabbaths in the summer of every year, with perhaps a fortnight intervening between each of them, to allow sufficient time for the children to commit to memory the division assigned.

Notice of Catechising Sabbath

When the time arrived for commencing the exercise, the excitement was tremendous. As the great battle of Trafalgar was about to begin between the immense armadas of England and France, Lord Nelson displayed at the masthead of his flagship, "The Victory," the exciting proclamation, streaming in the wind, "ENGLAND EXPECTS EVERY MAN TO DO HIS DUTY!" That proclamation woke all the national enthusiasm of his officers and men, and strung every nerve for the awful conflict. Scarcely less imperative and exciting was the annual announcement by Father Hale: "Sabbath after next, the first division of the Catechism will be recited here." It sent a thrill through the town.

Preparation and Arrangement

There was "no discharge in that war." Public sentiment demanded the most implicit obedience by all concerned. The old Primers were looked up, new ones bought, and the parents set their children to the work at once and in earnest. Every question and every answer must be most thoroughly committed to memory, verbatim, et literatim et punctuatim. The time for recitation was at the close of the afternoon service. All the children in the town, dressed in their "Sabbaday clothes," were arranged shoulder to shoulder, the boys on the one side and the girls on the other of the broad aisle, beginning at the "deacon's seat" beneath the pulpit, and extending down that aisle, and round through the side aisles as far as was necessary. The parents—"children of a larger growth"—crowded the pews and galleries, trembling, anxious that their little ones might acquit themselves well. Many a mother bent over that scene with a solemn interest, handkerchief in hand, the tears of joy ready to fall if their children should succeed, and tears of sorrow if they should happen to fail. It was a spectacle worthy of a painter.

Father Hale, standing in the pulpit, put out the questions to the children in order; and each one, when the question came to him, was expected to wheel out of the line, à la militaire, into the broad aisle, and face the minister, and make his best obeisance, and answer the question put to him without the slightest mistake. To be told, that is, to be prompted or corrected by the minister, was a thing not to be permitted by any child who expected thereafter to have any reputation in that town for good scholarship. In this manner the three divisions of the Catechism were successively recited, while many were the "knees which smote one against another"; and many were the persons who recollect, and will long recollect, the palpitating heart, the tremulous voice, the quivering frame, with which for several years they went through that terrible ordeal. But, if the nervous effects of that exercise were appalling, the moral influence was most salutary; and I desire, in this presence, to acknowledge my deep obligations to my parents, who long since, as I trust, "passed into the skies," for their fidelity in requiring me, much against my will, to commit to memory the Assembly's Catechism, and to "say" it six or seven years in succession in the old meeting house in Westhampton, amid tremblings and agitations I can never cease to remember.

Manner and Results

Universality
of the Catechism

But this was not all. The Catechism formed a part of the curriculum of all the common schools in that town for half a century, and was as thoroughly taught and as regularly recited there as Webster's spelling book or Murray's English Grammar. It was as truly a classic as any other book. It was taught everywhere in the family, in the school, and in the church, indeed it was the principal intellectual and religious pabulum of the people. We had it for breakfast, and we had it for dinner, and we had it for supper. The entire town was saturated with its doctrines, and it is almost as much so at the present day. The people could not, of course, descend into the profound depths of the metaphysics of theology, but they thoroughly understood the system which was held by the fathers in New England. They were not indeed prepared to

*"Reason high
of Providence, foreknowledge, will and fate, Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute;"*

but they so clearly apprehended what they believed to be the truths of the Bible,

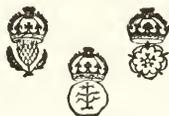

*"That to the height of this great argument
They could assert Eternal Providence,
And justify the ways of God to men."*

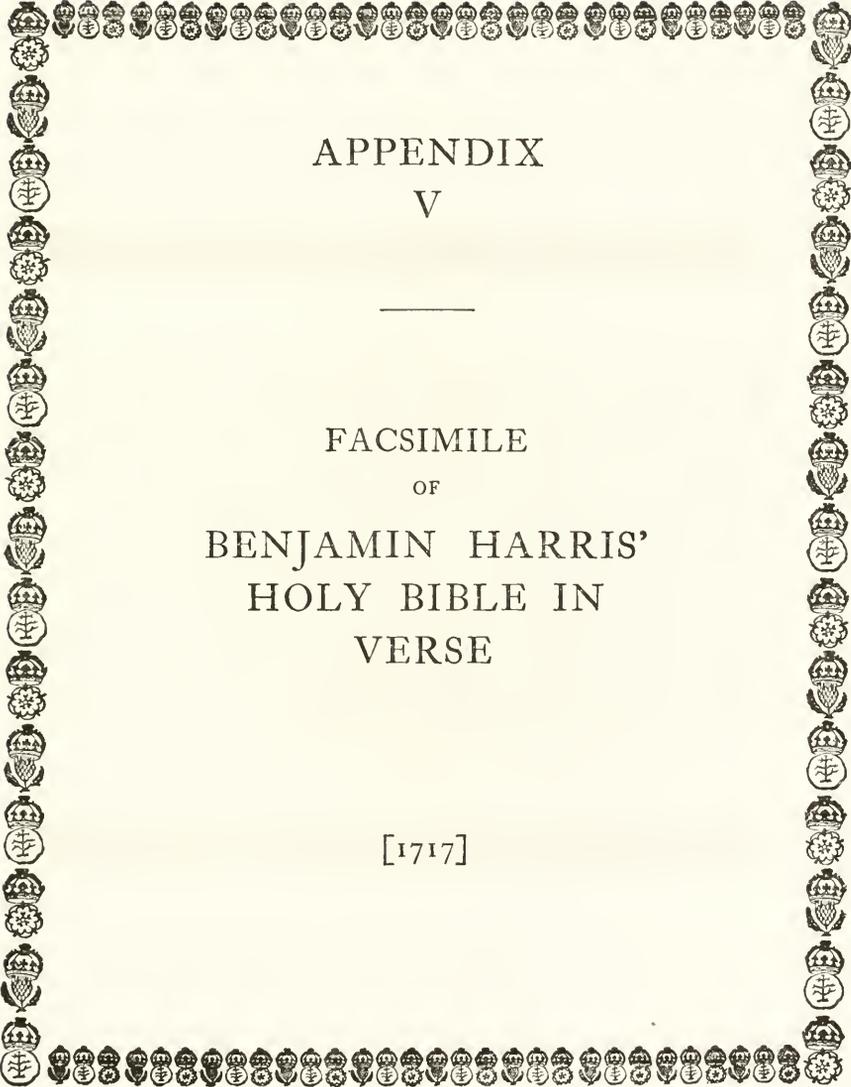

Catechising
Sabbath

The practice of instructing the children thoroughly in the Catechism, was very general throughout New England for a century and a half after the arrival of "The Mayflower." Judge Sewall, in the first volume of his "Diary," just published by the Massachusetts Historical Society, speaks of a certain Sabbath, which, in the Old South Church in this city, was called "The Catechising Day," and of his wearing a new article of clothing in honor of that specially important custom. But I believe that that excellent practice was nowhere so thoroughly carried out as it was in Western Massachusetts. That was largely owing to the transcendent influence of Jonathan Edwards, clarum et venerabile nomen, who was looked up to by the ministers in Boston and Scotland as the oracle in all metaphysical and theological matters. His influence in Northampton and Stockbridge, and in the regions round about, is visible to-day in the peculiar moral and religious grain of the people. This, ladies and gentlemen, was the way the New England character was formed.

BENJAMIN HARRIS' HOLY BIBLE IN VERSE

[1717]

THE interest in the following leaves, (which are all of those in the original little tract containing cuts, with the addition of the title and preface) is two-fold. Not merely is the poem from the pen of Benjamin Harris, but the prints are identical with those of the New England Primer, and as this edition was probably issued in Boston by Benjamin Harris, Jr., the illustrations are thus the earliest American prototypes of the rhymed-alphabet cuts yet known. The only known copy of this edition is in the Lenox Library.

The first record of the poem the editor has found is contained in an advertisement at the back of Harris' edition of Davenport's "Saint's Anchor hold" (London, 1701) where it is referred to as "The Holy Bible in Verse, Containing the Old and New Testament, with the Apocripha. The whole containing above One Thousand Lines, with Cuts. Price bound 3d." The edition of 1717 contains an advertisement dated 1712 and signed by Benjamin Harris, Jr., in which he refers to a pirated edition from the press of William Bradford, already issued. In the Advocates Library at Edinburgh is a copy with the title: "The / Holy Bible, / Containing / the Old & New / Testaments, / with the / Apocrypha. / Done into Verse for the Benefit of / weak memories. The whole con- / taining above One Thousand Lines / [ornament] / Edinburgh : / Printed in the year M DCC XXIV. /" The advertisement of Fleet reproduced in this volume also mentions an edition of the poem selling by that printer in 1751. Thus it is apparent that at least six editions have been issued.

And Esther thereupon's made Queen
A Plot's contriv'd against the King
Which Mordecai to light doth bring,
But Haman by the King's advanc'd
Who seeks revenge the Jews against
And for which act he does obtain,

Yet Mordecai to Esther sues,
Who begs the king to save the Jews

Job

The Holy Bible,
Job

This Book doth patient Job set forth
In his religious Life and Worth
How Satan does thro' Calumny
Endeavour him to vilify.
To damn'd deceit the Monster flies,
And impudence doth him disguise
Among God's fons his hellish Sway,
Presents it self a certain Day,
Jehovah's all discerning sight.
Soon saw th' Eternal Friend of night,
Knew all his Progress thro' this Globe,
And that his envy swell'd at Job,
Gave him Commission to molest,
And try to storm his peaceful breast:
When quick he flew more swift than Wind
We perpetrate what he'd design'd.

 How Christ and's Church are married.

BIBLIOGRAPHY
THE NEW ENGLAND
PRIMER

[1727-1799]

NOTE

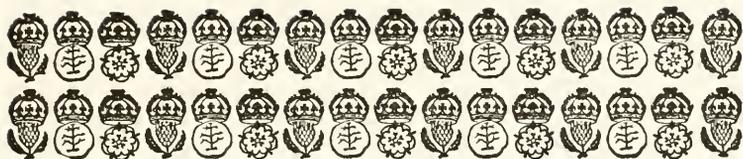

QUITE a number of the following editions are undated, but so far as I have been able to form any conclusion, all these fall within the decade 1790-1799. For convenience therefore, I have grouped them all together at the end of the dated editions.

As of some interest, there is appended to this list of Primers actually extant, such advertisements or other mention of editions as have been chanced upon. Possibly certain of these notices may not allude to the New England Primer, but the probabilities are that they do.

The form was a small sixteens, on foolscap paper. The first form of the Primer being set up, while it was worked at the press, I was put to case to set the types for the second. Having completed this, and set up the whole cast of types employed in the work, and the first form being still at press, I was employed as a fly; that is, to take off the sheets from the tympan as they were printed, and pile them in a heap;—this expedited the work. While I was engaged in this business, I viewed

VARIORUM
THE NEW ENGLAND
PRIMER

[1685-1775]

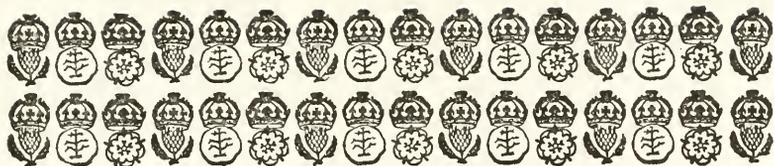

NOTE

WHAT follows is an attempt to gather so far as is possible, all the texts which appeared in every known edition of the New England Primer printed prior to 1776.

Each piece is classed under the Primer (or its prototypes) in which it first appeared, and all editions in which it was printed are mentioned in the appended notes. To all matter which appeared in the New England Primer of 1727, and the New English Tutor, both of which are reprinted in this volume, a mere reference to the page at which the text is printed is thought sufficient. Such texts as are not in those two publications are reprinted here.

Then let my heart so fixed be,
That I may lengthen out thy praise,
And never turn aside from thee.
So in my end I shall rejoice,
In thy salvation joyful be;
My soul shall say with loud glad voice,
Jehovah who is like to thee?
Who takest the lambs into thy arms,
And gently leadest those with young,
Who savest children from all harms,
Lord, I will praise thee with my song.
And when my days on earth shall end,
And I go hence and be here no more,
Give me eternity to spend,
My God to praise forever more.

* * New England Primer, 1738; 1762; 1771.

VERSES for Children.

THOUGH I am but a little one,
 If I can speak and go alone,
 Then I must learn to know the Lord,
 And learn to read his holy word.
 'Tis time to seek to God and pray
 For what I want for every day :
 I have a precious soul to save,
 And I a mortal body have,
 Tho' I am young yet I may die,
 And hasten to eternity :
 There is a dreadful fiery hell,
 Where wicked ones must always dwell ;
 There is a heaven full of joy,
 Where godly ones must always stay ;
 To one of these my soul must fly,
 As in a moment when I die :
 When God that made me, calls me home,
 I must not stay, I must be gone.
 He gave me life, and gives me breath,
 And he can save my soul from death,
 By JESUS CHRIST my only Lord,
 According to his holy word.
 He clothes my back and makes me warm :
 He saves my flesh and bones from harm.
 He gives me bread and milk and meat
 And all I have that's good to eat.
 When I am sick, he if he please,
 Can make me well and give me ease :
 He gives me sleep and quiet rest,
 Whereby my body is refresh'd
 The Lord is good and kind to me,
 And very thankful I must be :
 I must obey and love and fear him,
 By faith in Christ I must draw near him.
 I must not sin as others do,
 Left I lie down in sorrow too :

*New England
Primer, 1737*

New England
Primer, 1737

For God is angry every day,
With wicked ones who go astray.
All sinful words I must restrain:
I must not take God's name in vain.
I must not work, I must not play,
Upon God's holy sabbath day.
And if my parents speak the word,
I must obey them in the Lord.
Nor steal, nor lie, nor spend my days,
In idle tales and foolish plays.
I must obey my Lord's commands,
Do something with my little hands:
Remember my creator now,
In youth while time will it allow.
Young SAMUEL that little child,
He served the Lord, liv'd undefil'd;
Him in his service God employ'd,
While ELI's wicked children dy'd.
When wicked children mocking said,
To a good man, Go up bald head,
God was displeas'd with them and sent
Two bears which them in pieces rent.
I must not like these children vile,
Displease my God, myself defile
Like young ABIAH, I must see,
That good things may be found in me.
Young King JOSIAH, that blessed youth,
He fought the Lord and lov'd the truth;
He like a King did act his part,
And follow'd God with all his heart.
The little children they did sing,
Hosannahs to their heavenly King,
That blessed child young TIMOTHY,
Did learn God's word most heedfully.
It seem'd to be his recreation,
Which made him wise unto salvation;
By faith in Christ which he had gain'd
With prayers and tears that faith unfeign'd.

These good examples were for me;
 Like these good children I must be.
 Give me true faith in Christ my Lord,
 Obedience to his holy word.
 No word is in the world like thine,
 There's none so pure, sweet and divine.
 From thence let me thy will behold,
 And love thy word above fine gold.
 Make my heart in thy statutes found,
 And make my faith and love abound.
 Lord circumsise my heart to love thee:
 And nothing in this world above thee:
 Let me behold thy pleased face,
 And make my soul to grow in grace,
 And in the knowledge of my Lord
 And Saviour Christ, and of his word.

 New England Primer, 1738; 1762; 1771; 1775.

THE ROYAL PRIMER OF 1750-60?

*A Divine SONG of Praise to GOD, for a CHILD by the Rev.
 Dr. Watts.*

HOW glorious is our heav'nly King,
 Who reigns above the sky?
 How shall a child presume to sing
 His dreadful majesty?
 How great his power is, none can tell,
 Nor think how large his grace,
 Nor men below, nor saints that dwell
 On high before his face.
 Nor angels that stand round the Lord,
 Can search his secret will:
 But they perform his heav'nly word,
 And sing his praises still.

*The Royal
 Primer
 1750-1760?*

Then let me join this holy train,
 And my first off'rings bring;
 Th' eternal God will not disdain
 To hear an infant sing.

My heart resolves, my tongue obeys,
 And angels shall rejoice,
 To hear their mighty Maker's praise
 Sound from a feeble voice.

The late Reverend and Venerable Mr. Nathaniel Clap, of Newport on Rhode Island ; his Advice to children.

Good children should remember daily, God their Creator, Redeemer, and Sanctifier ; to believe in, love and serve him ; their parents to obey them in the Lord ; their bible and catechism ; their baptism ; the Lord's day ; the Lord's death and resurrection ; their own death and resurrection ; and the day of judgment, when all that are not fit for heaven must be sent to hell. And they should pray to God in the name of Christ for saving grace.

Advice to Youth. Eccle. xii.

Now in the heat of youthful blood,
Remember your Creator God;
Behold the months come hast'ning on,
When you shall say, My joys are gone.

Behold the aged sinner goes
Laden with guilt and heavy woes,
Down to the regions of the dead,
With endless curses on his head.

The dust returns to dust again,
The soul in agonies of pain,
Ascends to God not there to dwell,
But hears her doom and sinks to hell.
Eternal King I fear thy name,
Teach me to know how frail I am,
And when my soul must hence remove,
Give me a mansion in thy love.

The Sum of the Ten Commandments.

With all thy soul love God above
And as thyself thy neighbour love.

 New England Primer, 1767; 1768; 1771; 1775.

Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth.

Children your great Creator fear.
To him your homage pay,
While vain employments fire your blood,
And lead your thoughts astray
The due remembrance of his name
Your first regard requires:
Till your breast glows with sacred love,
Indulge no meaner fires.
Secure his favor, and be wise,
Before these cheerless days,
When age comes on, when mirth's no more
And health and strength decays.

A CRADLE HYMN, BY DR. WATTS.

*New England
Primer, 1762*

HUSH, my dear, lie still and slumber,
 Holy angels guard thy bed,
 Heav'nly blessings without number
 Gently falling on thy head.
 Sleep, my babe, thy food and raiment,
 House and home thy friends provide,
 And without thy care or payment,
 All thy wants are well supply'd.
 How much better thou'rt attended,
 Than the Son of God could be,
 When from heaven he descended,
 And became a child like thee.
 Soft and easy is thy cradle,
 Coarse and hard thy Saviour lay,
 When his birth place was a stable,
 And his softest bed was hay.
 Blessed babe ! what glorious features !
 Spotless fair, divinely bright ;
 Must he dwell with brutal creatures ?
 How could angels bear the sight ?
 Was there nothing but a manger,
 Cursed sinners could afford,
 To receive the heav'nly stranger ?
 Did they thus affront the Lord ?
 Soft, my Child, I did not chide thee,
 Though my song might sound too hard,
 'Tis thy mother sits beside thee,
 And her arms shall be thy guard.
 Yet to read the shameful story,
 How the Jews abus'd their King,
 How they serv'd the Lord of glory,
 Makes me angry while I sing.
 See the kinder shepherds round him,
 Telling wonders of the sky ;
 There they sought him, there they found him,
 With his virgin mother by.

See the lovely babe a-dressing :
 Lovely infant, how he smil'd !
 When he wept, the mother's blessing
 Sooth'd and hush'd the holy child.
 Lo! he slumber'd in the manger,
 Where the horned oxen fed ;
 Peace my darling, here's no danger,
 Here's no oxen near thy bed.
 'Twas to save thee, child, from dying,
 Save my dear from burning flame,
 Bitter groans and endless crying,
 That thy bless'd Redeemer came.
 May'st thou live to know and fear him,
 Trust and love him all thy days !
 Then go dwell for ever near him,
 See his face, and sing his praise,
 I could give thee thousand kisses,
 Hoping what I most desire :
 Not a mother's fondest wishes,
 Can to greater joy aspire.

THE HISTORY OF MASTER TOMMY FIDO.

AS Goodness and Learning make the Child a Man, so Piety makes him an Angel. Master Tommy Fido not only loved his Book because it made him wiser, but because it made him better too. He loved every Body, and could not see a Stranger hurt,

The CROCODILE.

O'er Mountains and every creature cries.*

The ASS.

THE Ass, this mean, will by his bray, Oblige your Horse to run away.

The LION.

*THE Lion the King of the wood,
And makes the other beasts his food.*

The WOLF.

*THE *W*olf, the monarch of the main
As is the Lion of the Plain.*

From the New England Primer. Newburyport, [n. d.]

without feeling what he suffered, without pitying him, and wishing he could help him. He loved his Papa and Mamma, his Brothers and Sisters, with the dearest Affection; he learnt his Duty to God, thanked him for his Goodness, and was glad that he had not made him a Horse or a Cow, but had given him Sense enough to know his Duty, and every Day when he said his Prayers, thanked God for making him a little Man. One Day he went to Church, he minded what the Parson said, and when he came home asked his Papa, if God loved him; his Papa said Yes, my Dear. O! my dear Papa, said he, I am glad to hear it; what a charming Thing it is to have God my Friend! then nothing can hurt me; I am sure I will love him as well as ever I can. Thus he every Day grew wiser and better. Every Body was pleased with him, he had many Friends, the Poor blessed him, and every one strove to make him happy.

THE HISTORY OF THE CREATION.

In six Days God made the World, and all Things that are in it. He made the Sun to shine by Day, and the Moon to shine by Night. He made all the Beasts that walk on the Earth all the Birds that fly in the Air, and all the Fish that swim in the Sea. Each Herb, and Plant, and Tree, are the Works of his Hands. All Things both great and small, that live and move, and breathe in this wide World, to him do owe their Breath, to him their Life: And God saw all that he made, and all were good. But there was not a Man to till the Ground. So God made Man of the Dust of the Earth and breathed into him the Breath of Life; and gave him rule o'er all that he had made: And the Man gave Names to all the Beasts of the Field, the Fowls of the Air, and the Fish of the Sea. But there was not found a Help meet for man; so God brought on him a deep Sleep and then took from his Side a Rib, of which he made a Wife, and gave her to the Man and her Name was Eve: and from these two came all the Sons of Men.

A friend in need is a friend indeed.
 Fair words butter no parsnips.
 When the fox preaches let the geese beware.
 Fly the pleasure that will bite to-morrow.
 If all fools wore white caps, we should look like a flock of geese.

A short Prayer to be used every Morning.

O LORD our heavenly Father, almighty and everlasting God, I most humbly thank thee for thy great mercy and goodness in preserving and keeping me from all perils and dangers of this night past, and bringing me safely to the beginning of this day; defend me, O LORD, in the same, with thy mighty power; and grant, that this day I may fall into no sin, neither run into any danger, but that all my doings may be ordered by thy governance, to do always that which is righteous in thy sight, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

* * New England Primer, 1771.

A short Prayer to be used every Evening.

O LORD God, I beseech thee, of thy fatherly goodness and mercy to pardon all my offences, which in thought word or deed, I have this day committed against thee, and thy holy law. And now Lord, since the night is upon me and I am to take my rest, I pray thee lighten my eyes that I sleep not in death, let not my bed prove my grave, but so by the wings of thy mercy protect me, that I may rest from all terrors of darkness, that when I shall awake I may bless thy great and glorious name, and study to serve thee in the duties of the day following, that thou mayest be still my God, and I thy servant. Grant this for Jesus Christ's sake, to whom with thee and the Holy Ghost, be given, as most due, all honor and glory, now and forevermore. Amen.

Advice to Children.

COME Babe most dear,
To me draw near,
And harken to my Voice,
My Counsel take,
And thou shalt make Thy Parents Hearts rejoice.
Let true Love lead
Thy Mind to read,
That thou may'ft be a Preacher,
To Slugs a Shame,
To Blockheads blame,
But Gladness to thy Teacher.
Be not as they
Which follow Play,
With Dullards Head most muddy ;
But let thy Mind,
Be well inclin'd
Wisdom to seek with Study.
For Fools do haste,
Their Time to waste,
Spending in Sport the Day ;
But while they jest,
Let thy Heart feast,
In seeking Wisdom's Way.

*New England
Primer, 1767*

As God's dear Seed,
To learn give Heed.
That when thy Head is hoary ;
Wisdom may be
A Crown to thee,
Transcending earthly Glory.
Do not dissemble,
But rather tremble,
With heart like broken Fallow ;
Nor steal, nor swear,
But dread, and fear,
God's holy Name to hallow ;
Nor lust, nor lye,
Lest thou should'st die
In such a woful State ;
For God is just,
And all such must Sink down into the Laks.
In God's own Way
Thou shalt obey,
Thy Father and thy Mother ;
And as a Dove,
Shall live in Love.
With Sister and with Brother.
That in their Sight
Each Day and Night,
Thou may'st be Joy and Pleasure ;
And in their Eye
Fixt constantly,
As their peculiar Treasure.
To each Delight,
In carnal Sight,
In God's pure Dread and Fear ;
My Soul doth yearn
That thou may'st learn
A slaying sword to wear.
To Christ's Cross bend,
And in the End,

Through Mercy, not as Merit,
In high Renown
And heavenly Crown,
And Kingdom shall inherit.
Thy Peace and Rest
From God's own Breaft
Not Death or Hell shall sever:
But thou shalt see Thy joy shall be,
Amen, in him for ever.
